8 Nations Meet to Weigh Peace In Sino-Jap War

Discuss Plan to Invite Japan to Conference Even If Italy Objects; Terms of Armistice Sought From Both Sides In Effort to End Hostilities; Japs 'Cold' to Program.

BULLETIN

BRUSSELS—(AP)—The Brussels conference of 19 nations decided today to empower a subcommittee to offer its aid to Japan and China in effecting peace between the two nations, and reliable indications were that the United States, Britain and Belgium would be on the committee. Italy and France also probably would be represented.

BRUSSELS, Belgium — (UP) — The representatives of eight nations met secretly today to discuss a new effort to get Japan to talk peace in the Far East.

The nations were the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy, The Netherlands, Belgium, Portugal—signatories to the nine-power treaty of 1922—and Russia. China, another original signatory, was excluded.

Among the steps envisaged by the conferees was to again invite Japan to send a delegate to Brussels. It was reported that if Italy tried to block a new invitation, the United States, Britain and France might issue one on their own responsibility.

Another step would be the appointment of a committee of mediating powers to ask China and Japan to state terms for an armistice. Germany would be asked to join this committee and the conference then would adjourn until China and Japan replied

A third point under discussion was the convocation of a second conference to arrange a final peace settlement if the mediators succeeded in bringing about an armistice.

See Japan Refuse.

Japanese sources indicated to the United Press, however, that Japan would decline an invitation to such a conference.

The eight-power meeting today was decided upon by Norman H. Davis, United States chief delegate, Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, and Yvon Delbos, French foreign minister.

A chief point of a long conference among them, it was understood, was how to circumvent Italian opposition to the new peace overtures. Italy indicated yesterday through her delegate, Count Luigi Aldrovandi-Marescotti, that she was ready to uphold Japan's interest at the conference.

Confers With Jap Envoy.

While Davis, Eden and Delbos were conferring, it was learned that Sir Robert H. Clive, British ambassador to Belgium who recently had been transferred from Tokyo, conferred with Saburo Kurusu, the Japanese ambassador to Belgium.

Clive was understood to have asked Kurusu whether Japan would be willing to attend another conference to consider a general far eastern settlement if the present one succeeds in arranging an armistice in the present fighting.

ROOSEVELT TO SEE LA GUARDIA

President to Confer With New York Mayor Who Led Rout of Tammany Hall.

BULLETIN

HYDE PARK, N. Y.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, travelling by motor, left here at 9:55 a. m. (EST), today for New York City.

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— President Roosevelt confers today with Mayor Fiorello H La Guardia, who led a Republican-American labor party-fusion ticket to an overwhelming victory over the Tammany Hall-New Deal Democratic organizations in Tuesday's municipal election.

The president probably will entertain La Guardia at luncheon in his town house during a brief visit to New York City before returning to Washington. Mr. Roosevelt planned to leave his temporary White House at Hyde Park, N. Y., by automobile this morning.

Announcement of the LaGuardia visit caused considerable spec-

SHOOT OPENS

300 Police In Mansfield For Pistol Matches.

Nearly 300 police officers from all parts of the state arrived here today to participate in the third annual pistol matches sponsored by the Ohio Brotherhood of Police officers.

The shoot opened today at 10 a. m. and will continue until 6 p. m. tomorrow, according to H. E. McClure, former Mansfield police chief, and brotherhood secretary.

Lieut. H. F. Wentz, Newark, is the range officer in charge.

Gold and silver trophies are to be awarded to officers attaining high scores in each of three divisions.

All matches will be at 25 yards. Contestants are required to record two scores of five rounds each, at slow fire, timed fire, and rapid fire.

OHIO TO BURY ROBINSON

PASADENA, Calif.—(U.P.)—The body of Henry M. Robinson, banker and adviser to three presidents, will be interred in the family mausoleum at Oak Hill cemetery, Youngstown, O., it was announced today.

9 Tied In Three Township 'Races' At One Vote Each

Out in Jackson and Mifflin townships where they don't take the offices of justice of peace and constable very seriously, it's going to require some coin-flipping to decide the winners for those offices in the election Tuesday, according to board of election officials.

The vote count showed ties for three offices in the two townships, with nine names written in on the ballots. Each man received one vote, which led election officials to believe the votes might have been cast as a joke.

No candidates had filed for justice of peace or constable in Jackson township and none for constable in Mifflin township.

W. W. Moorhead, James Holtz and C. L. Kilgore received one vote each for justice of peace in Jackson township, and Homer Imhoff and O. W. Kuhn tied at one-all for constable.

Four write-in candidates — C C. Cole, Roy Kohl, H. Koogle and Waldo Hale—had one vote each for constable in Mifflin township.

Election officials pointed out that in the event of a tie, the candidates are invited to the board of elections office to witness the coin flipping. If the winner declines the office, and the post is not an important one, the office is left vacant.

SCALDS FATAL

Ohioan Trapped In Tank as Steam Pours In.

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— John Mize, 26, Huron, O., was scalded to death when live steam accidentally was turned into a water purifying tank he was cleaning on the Great Lakes grain boat Mariposa, off South Chicago.

ALL BUT TWO MAYORS ARE REPUBLICANS

Hunter, Victor In Mansfield, and Smith at Lucas Only Democrats Elected.

3 EXECUTIVES RE-ELECTED

Lexington, Plymouth, Bellville, Shiloh, Butler, and Shelby Have G. O. P. Heads.

While Mansfield elected Claude M. Hunter, a Democratic mayor, Tuesday, Shelby and five of the six villages in Richland county were electing Republicans to head their municipal tickets, a check of election figures showed today.

Following a trend that was state-wide, Shelby re-elected D. Bruce Young, Republican, on a non-partisan ballot, while Bellville defeated Edgar R. Stahl, incumbent Democrat, and gave a majority to Thomas R. Zeigler, Republican.

4 Elected First Time.

Four of the six village mayors in the county will take their offices for the first time Jan. 1. Only O. G. Misamore, Republican, re-elected at Lexington, and J. T. Gaskell, also a Republican, mayor of Plymouth, were returned to office. Three of the four present mayors, however, were not candidates for re-election. Stahl and Atty. Vance C. Stuller, a Democrat, opposed Zeigler at Bellville.

At Butler, J. F. Bumpus, a Republican, won over C. D. Martin. He will succeed Amos Young, present mayor, who did not file for re-election. C. D. Nelson, another Republican, was elected at Shiloh to follow Glenn Swanger. Nelson was unopposed.

Unopposed at Lucas.

The other Democrat who was successful in the election was L. M. Smith, elected mayor of Lucas to succeed Hoy Leiter who was not a candidate. Smith was unopposed.

Although all of the mayors outside of Mansfield were elected on non-partisan ballots, most of them were backed by political organizations in their communities.

Meanwhile the county board of elections began the official count of the votes cast in Tuesday's election, beginning with the boards of education in the county districts. The Mansfield count probably will be made last, Arliss G. Porter, clerk, said.

Candidates will have 15 days after election in which to file their

MAPS STUDY OF DELINQUENT TAX

Solon Says Approval Being Sought for $500,000 Project.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Rep. Edward J. Gardner said today negotiations were underway to establish a $250,000 to $500,000 works progress administration project to study Ohio's real estate tax delinquency, comprising more than half the $209,000,000 delinquent taxes due counties. He expressed hope work could start by Jan. 1.

The cost to the state would not exceed $25,000 and the project would give employment to six to 12 persons in each of the state's 88 counties, the state delinquent tax commission chairman said.

The study would involve compilation of all real estate tax delinquencies, including special assessments.

FRENCH SHIP SUNK

MADRID —(U.P.)— The French merchantman Corse was sunk by bombs from a hydroplane off Mataro, on the Catalan coast, early this morning, according to reliable reports received here.

Throng Gathers To See Champ Corn Huskers In Title Contest

MARSALL, Mo —(AP)—Twenty pairs of hardened hands reached today for the championship of agriculture's greatest sporting spectacle, the national cornhusking contest.

Thousands of excited spectators tramped over the rolling acres of the Weber Bros. farm, eight miles north of here, to watch the contestants, all trained to athletic perfection. The 20 represent the pick of corn huskers from 10 states.

Contestants arrived yesterday and tried out the corn in this area just to get the feel of it. Champions and runnersup from states other than Missouri said the corn did not re-act to their touch as it did back home and attributed it to the fact there has been little rain here in recent weeks. The corn, they said, seemed to pop from the stalk but the husk had a tendency not to cling to the ears.

Jack Wolles of South Dakota, predicted trouble from ears falling to the ground. Contestants dare not leave the ears because of penalty deductions.

Twelve noon was the hour set for Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace to touch off a bomb starting the state champions and runners-up on 80 minutes of grueling work.

President Roosevelt, who had agreed to start the contest, was unable to do so because he was en route from Hyde Park to New York City.

Shirley Sets a New Style

SHIRLEY'S NEW HAIRDRESS

A left part, with soft curls falling loosely over the right ear but tied back over the left ear, and a wispy curl at the part. These are features of Shirley Temple's new hairdress. This is the first time in her screen career the arrangement of her famous golden curls has been altered.

There's something the hairdresses' convention overlooked —Shirley Temple.

Shirley has changed her style of hairdress for the first time since she became a national figure. No more tousled curls, for Shirley's almost nine.

Since this probably will affect mothers of America's eight-year-olds, it might be well to consider the subject.

Miss Agnes F. Schmidt of Lincoln, Neb., who specializes in coiffures for little girls, has quite a few ideas on that topic. Here are some of them:

Don't use tin curlers or tight pads on your child's hair. They interfere with that most important item in a young lady's regimen—sleep.

Don't cater to cowlicks. Study the shape of your daughter's face, the texture of her hair, her general appearance and adapt the cowlick.

If daughter has a slender face, experiment with windblown wisps over the cheeks. Part the hair low—and slant the part.

If the face is full try a part in the center—tying the hair back with two little bows.

If the youngster has a bit of natural wave near the scalp, add three or four curls near the ends of her hair.

Above everything, keep a small girl's hairdress simple. See that she washes her hair with a mild soap or takes a soapless shampoo. And be sure she brushes her hair often.

Rejected Recreation Levy To Go on Ballot Next Year

Chairman Predicts Board Will Re-submit Issue Asking Tenth of Mill—1938 Program to Be Curtailed.

The tenth of a mill levy for recreational purposes which was defeated in Tuesday's election, will be submitted to Mansfield voters again next year, Floyd Dent, chairman of the city recreation board, predicted today.

Dent explained that while this wasn't the official decision of the board, he felt members wouldn't let the issue drop as "it is too valuable to the welfare of our children."

"I cannot speak for the board, but I am reasonably sure that we will place the issue on the ballot again next fall," Dent added.

Would Raise $4,000.

The levy, which would raise $4,000 annually by adding 10 cents to the taxes on each $1,000 of valuation, received a majority vote in Tuesday's election but was far short of the necessary 65 per cent required under the state law. The vote for the issue was 5,151 while 4,464 voted against it.

Dent said all playground activities would have to be curtailed next year despite the fact the recreational fund has a $7,500 balance.

"While the normal operating cost of the supervised playgrounds is about $3,500 a year, even if the proposal is approved by the voters next fall, it will be 1940 before any funds will be forthcoming," he said.

"This means that we must curtail activities as much as possible in order to stretch the $7,500 over a three-year period."

MORE ACUTE

Relief Problem Grows With Defeat of Levies.

COLUMBUS— (AP) —The problem of financing relief for Ohio's indigent became more acute today after two counties and two cities refused to contribute additional taxes for the purpose.

Welfare levies were voted down in Tuesday's election by Cuyahoga county, Mahoning county, Akron and Columbus.

Probably the greater share of the state's relief load last year was carried by these four local governments. Nearly a third of the $27,000,000 spent by the state for relief in 1937 went to the indigent of Cuyahoga county alone.

Hamilton county, on the other hand, approved a relief levy, and Summit countians voted a $102,000 bond issue to care for the needy.

LA FERRIERE ON WAY TO U. S.

French News Woman Who Shot Count Boards Liner.

PARIS —(AP)— Mme. Madeline La Ferriere, who received a one-year suspended sentence July 30 for shooting Count Charles De Chambrun, was reported today to be on board the liner Normandie en route to New York.

The former French newspaper woman, who testified at her trial that Count De Chambrun, former French ambassador to Italy, had broken up her friendship with Premier Benito Mussolini, was declared recognized boarding a boat train yesterday.

TEACHER GONE

Danville Music Instructor Missing, Superintendent Reports.

MT. VERNON—(AP)—Supt. W. D. Edgerley of the nearby Danville high school reported to the sheriff's office today the disappearance of Josef F. Jirec, 28, of Springfield, a music teacher.

Edgerley said that Jirec, whom he described as a "serious-minded young man," was last seen Saturday. The superintendent was unable to offer any clues to the disappearance.

CHANGE OF MIND COSTLY TO FORD

Pays $100,000 for Broadcast Option He Didn't Use.

DETROIT —(AP)— Henry Ford experienced a $100,000 "change of mind" concerning a world series broadcast last summer, friends of the automobile magnate said today, after the two New York teams clinched their respective league pennants.

The $100,000 was paid for an option to broadcast the series games. How much additional expense would have resulted from decision to exercise the option would depend on extent of station facilities obtained.

Ford was not available for comment today, but friends represented him as believing widespread interest was lacking in the New York "subway series."

'WHISPERING EDDIE' DIES

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Edward H. Schoelwer, radio pianist known to fans as "Whispering Eddie," died today. He had been in radio work nearly 20 years.

GRAND JURY'S FINDINGS DUE ON DOPE CASE

Panel to Report Late Today After Probing Charges Against 19 Persons.

4 UP ON MARIJUANA COUNT

Other Major Case Involves Shelby Father Held In Son's Traffic Death.

The county grand jury today considered charges against 19 persons, six of whom are Mansfielders accused of dope peddling or illegal administering of narcotics.

Four accused marijuana peddlers were arrested in the same raid and were held for possession of marijuana cigarets. They are Theodore Heffelfinger, Maxwell Hoover, Lorrain Morris and Harold Rastetter

Hear Doctor's Case.

Held for investigation on charges of illegally administering narcotics is Dr. James Sawyer. Ivory Ryland, sixth member of the group, is accused of illegally possessing morphine.

The jury, which is expected to submit its report late today, also is weighing charges of manslaughter against Pose Wade, of Shelby, who was arrested after his son was killed in an automobile crash near Shelby.

Another case concerning a Shelby resident, H. J. LaBarge is held on a charge of cutting with intent to wound his wife, Bessie. The charges grew out of an attempted murder and suicide in which LaBarge stabbed his wife 13 times with paring knife.

Other Charges.

Other cases on the docket involve charges against the following persons:

Hiram Littleton, arson: John C. Wayne, auto theft; John Oney, assault and battery; Jack Perry, statutory offense; James Furness and Wilbur Gruver, operating a motor vehicle without the owner's consent; John Reynolds, carrying concealed weapons; William Snook, Russell Sprunger and George Turner, grand larceny; and James Thompson, non-support.

COLD SETS IN

Mercury Skids to 23; Friday to Be Rainy, Chilly.

So you thought it was cold last night, did you? Well, it was. As a matter of record, the temperature skidded to 23—which is 13 degrees below freezing, and those automobile owners who hadn't yet taken care of their radiators for winter driving probably regretted it this morning. At noon today the reading was 43.

Observer Otto Sprunger's records showed it wasn't very warm at any time yesterday. The high was 44, and the average for the 24-hour period was 33:5, just above freezing.

The forecast said tonight would be a little warmer, but that cold weather would be back Friday night, with perhaps some rain Friday afternoon.

PICK CHICAGO

Louis, Schmeling to Fight in Windy City, Paper Says.

CHICAGO — (AP) — The Chicago Daily Times said today it had learned from Joe Louis' comanagers that his defense of the heavyweight boxing championship against Max Schmeling next June would be staged in Chicago.

Julian Black and John Roxborough, Louis' handlers, told the paper, it said, that they demanded the fight be held here when they signed with Promoter Mike Jacobs recently.

"All manual switching will be done at the central office," Wittemire explained, "and only a maintenance man will be needed at the station to care for the machine switching equipment that is to be installed."

Installation of the new equipment will complete the company's $50,000 expansion program, which included the laying of several miles of underground conduit and an addition to the present office building on Park avenue west.

GETS REVENGE

Farmer Tells Urbanite Silo Stores Mustard or Hot Dogs.

MARSHALL, Mo. — (AP) — A farmer got revenge for gilded bricks and Brooklyn bridges sold his ancestors by city sickers. A traveling man here for the national corn husking contest gaped as the agrarian told of a big silo, the one holding "mustard for the hot dog sandwiches."

Bystanders winked, but the city man mumbled:

"It's even a bigger thing than I thought."

STATE CALLS FOR DEATH IN POISON TRIAL

Blond Anna Leaves Witness Stand After Two Days of Testimony.

FINAL ARGUMENTS START

Fate of Cincinnati Woman to Be Decided by Eleven Women, One Man.

CINCINNATI—(AP)—The state prepared a plea today to a jury of 11 women and one man to send Anna Marie Hahn to the electric chair as the poison slayer of a 78-year-old gardener, Jacob Wagner.

Judge Charles S. Bell allotted the state and defense five hours each for final arguments to the jury. The defense rested yesterday after Mrs. Hahn left the stand after almost two days of testimony.

Three Defense Witnesses.

The defense offered three witnesses — the Bavarian-born defendant, her 12-year-old son, Oscar, and Dr. William McNally, Chicago toxicologist.

The state brought its 96th witness to the stand in rebuttal testimony which closed last night the record of evidence of the deaths of four lonely old acquaintances of the 31-year-old mother.

Prosecutor Dudley M. Outcalt indicated that he would not require the full time permitted for final arguments. Chief Defense Counsel Joseph H. Hoodin planned to start his final plea during the day.

Judge Bell permitted the evidence of the poison deaths of three other men besides Wagner after he said the state had offered prima facie evidence of the poison death of Wagner. Mrs. Hahn also is indicted for murder in the death of George Gsellman, 67.

Mrs. Hahn Confused.

Mrs. Hahn became confused during a rapid-fire cross-examination by Prosecutor Outcalt and several times said "I don't remember" concerning a web of financial transactions.

Tears were visible in her eyes as Outcalt pressed her sharply concerning the use of her maiden name "A. Filser," on a document purporting to grant her power of attorney for Mrs. Oliver Koehler, who died shortly after Mrs. Hahn was arrested Aug. 10.

With the jury out, Hoodin protested the introduction of what he termed new evidence.

"We are having enough difficulties defending not only one charge but four."

DEATH TOLL 225

700 Others Injured In Bomb Raid by Insurgents, Claim.

MADRID—(AP)—An official announcement today placed the toll of Tuesday's air raid on the Catalan city of Lerida at 225 dead and more than 700 injured.

Reports from the stricken northeastern city said the funeral ceremonies today would be brief because of the danger of a renewed onslaught by insurgent bombing planes.

Nine bombers appeared over Lerida yesterday afternoon but dropped no bombs.

The bombing of Lerida and a similar attack yesterday on Barbastro, another Catalan city, which reported about 80 persons killed, were ranked by Madrid newspapers as among the worst attacks on government territory since the beginning of the Civil war in July, last year.

VICTOR AGAIN

Mayor Under Prison Sentence Beats Two Opponents.

PRESTONSBURG, Ky.—(AP)—Mayor A. C. Carter, who is under a two-year sentence for mismanagement of federal relief funds, was swept back into the mayor's office, a tabulation of votes revealed today.

Carter, whose case is on appeal to the supreme court, polled more votes than his two opponents combined—587, to 199 for Burl Spurlock and 88 for N. M. White.

ADMITS SLAYINGS

WPA Worker Confesses Killing Aged Sisters, Sheriff Says.

Labor in Duchess' Home Town Warns Against 'Slum Party'

BALTIMORE —(AP)— The welcome that will be accorded the Duke and Duchess of Windsor if the American labor-study tour arranged by Charles E. Bedaux includes Baltimore, was jeopardized today by the attitude of labor groups in the former Wallis Warfield's "home" town.

The Baltimore Federation of Labor, an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor, last night "warned" organized labor of the city against "slumming parties professing to help and study labor."

In an unamously-passed resolution to that effect, the group flared at Bedaux' "stretch-out" efficiency system which he has established in some leading industries, expressed strong disfavor of the Duke's friendly visit with Chancellor Adolf Hitler of Germany, and asserted the Duchess exhibited no friendliness to labor while she lived here.

"Immediately preceding this visit (to the United States)," the resolution declared, "The Duke and the Duchess . . . visited Nazi Germany and . . . studied labor under the personal guidance of Dr. Ley (Dr. Robert Ley, leader of Germany's labor front), the man who ordered and ruthlessly directed the destruction of all German free trade unions . . . . . The former king and Lumbermens Mutuals Second High With 2916—Carl Phillipon Paces Individuals With 664 Total In City League.

THE LIEDERKRANZ CLUB was high among the City Class A league teams in the weekly matches at the Meder alleys last night with a 2922 total. The string of 932, 1029 and 961 was good for a pair of wins over the Roma Lunch, which clacked out a 2778.

Schmidt led the Liederkranz with a 655, which included a 246, and he was assisted by Lettiker, 636, and Blackburn, 607. Ritter was high for the Lunch with a 606. Applan turned in a 247 game.

The Lumbermens Mutuals compiled a 2916 total, and boasted the high individual scorer in Carl Phillipon, who tumbled 664 pins to the pits. The Mutuals rolled a 613.

In the other match, the Meder Recreation came through with a 2697 to take a pair of decisions from the Miller Oldsmobiles.

LOSES, ATTACKS REFEREE

LOS ANGELES—Sandor Szabo, 215, Hungary, defeated Dean Detton, 205, Salt Lake City, when Detton attacked referee and was disqualified.

B-W Suspends Aron, Lundblad Brothers.

BEREA — (U.P.)—Three Baldwin-Wallace college football stars had dropped out of school today following a suspension for non-payment of student fees. The players who left the Yellow Jacket team were: Ted Lundblad, a husky 200-pound end; his brother, Paul, a halfback, and Dave Aron, another backfield man.

L. H. Fitch, college auditor, said the gridders were suspended when they fell in arrears on the payment of fees. Paul Lundblad and Aron, it was said, would seek admission to some other school, but Ted Lundblad intends to give up his educational pursuits and go to work.

BUCK GAME HEADS BILL

Ohio's Title Chances Will Be Decided in Tussle With Indiana Saturday.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Whether Ohio State is destined to win or share the Western Conference football title probably will be decided here Saturday as the Bucks meet "Bo" McMillin's University of Indiana Hoosiers in the headline event of a 20-game program involving 32 of the state's 35 teams.

The Bucks are riding the crest with three straight league conquests. The Hoosiers lost to Minnesota and defeated Illinois. Should Ohio get by Indiana, the Bucks would be odds-on choices to take the final games from Illinois and Michigan.

Host of 'Naturals.'

While the Big Ten clash will grab most of the interest, there are a host of "naturals" in the state.

Up at Cleveland the Ohio conference leadership is to be settled between Baldwin-Wallace and Case, the only unbeaten-untied teams in the loop. The contest looms as a toss-up, each having won three in a row in the circuit. Each has permitted one enemy touchdown, while the Yellow Jackets have scored 55 points to 51 for Case.

Dayton, the state's only unblemished team, takes on the Toledo Rockets on the latter squad's field. The Rockets have won five of their six contests, losing only to Akron, while Dayton has copped six in a row.

Two contests are slated in the Buckeye conference, but only the defeated teams figure in them. Ohio Wesleyan meets Miami at Oxford and Ohio university goes to Cincinnati. Marshall, sixth member of the league, plays Centre at Huntington, W. Va.

Six Ohio conference tilts, in addition to the Case-Baldwin-Wallace classic, take Oberlin to Wooster, Findlay to Kent State, Wittenberg at Bowling Green, Mount Union to Denison, Muskingum to Ohio Northern, and Capital to Heidelberg.

Reserve at Syracuse.

Western Reserve, defeated for the first time in 29 games by Dayton Saturday, attempts to get back on the right side of the ledger by meeting Syracuse on the New York gridiron. Coach Bill Edwards said his team probably would rebound after the Dayton setback and "give Syracuse the battle of its life."

Other Saturday contests: Olivet at John Carroll, Hiram at Otterbein, Kenyon at Lake Forest, Davis & Elkins at Akron, Wilberforce at Lincoln U., Bluffton at Defiance, W. & J. at Marietta, and Creighton at Xavier.

For the first time this season, no Friday games are booked.

TURNS PRO

HELEN WILLS MOODY

By ALAN GOULD

NEW YORK — (AP) — Helen Wills Moody, whose long-time reign as queen of the world's tennis courts covered a period from 1923 to 1935, has agreed to accept a professional contract and make a country-wide tour this winter.

Final arrangements, the Associated Press learned today, hinge only on the question of obtaining a suitable opponent for the famous Californian.

The prospects are that Mrs. Moody will make her professional debut in Madison Square Garden, early in January, and that her playing rival will be Jadwiga Jedrzejowska, the husky Polish girl who was runner-up to Anita Lizana of Chile for the United States singles title.

It is understood that Miss Lizana, as well as two American stars, Alice Marble and Helen Hull Jacobs, turned down professional offers during the quest of New York promoters for the party of the second part. Miss Marble was national champion in 1936. She ended a four-year reign at Forest Hills by Miss Jacobs, long considered Mrs. Moody's foremost American rival.

Mlle. Jedrzejowska, now in Poland, is reported to be weighing a definite offer to join this winter's tennis tourists.

Meantime the promoters, headed by Francis T. Hunter, former national doubles champion partner of Big Bill Tilden, have decided to withhold any definite announcements.

It is believed Mrs. Moody has been guaranteed a substantial sum, probably $25,000, in addition to a substantial percentage of gate receipts. Estimates of her potential earnings for a single professional season range from $50,000 to $100,000.

Her venture will mark the first time a feminine champion has taken the pro spotlight since 1926, when Suzanne Lenglen, the great French player, was the main attraction of a troupe organized by C. C. Pyle.

STAGE COON CHASE

The Summit County Coon Hunters association will sponsor a coon chase Sunday nine miles west of Akron at Paxton, O., an announcement said today. Prizes will be awarded in heat events, first tree and first line finals.

MANSFIELD STATUS REMAINS IN DOUBT

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor

THOUGH the Mansfield status remains in doubt, Ohio State league officials are taking it for granted that this city will continue in the Ohio State league as they formulate plans for next season.

Billy Evans, director of the Boston Red Sox farm system, is not over-enthused about playing facilities in the city, and he has indicated that he might forfeit the Mansfield franchise, but no definite move has been made as yet.

Boston has not given up the idea of returning to Mansfield entirely, according to an authoritative source, and this information was given credence when Bob Evans, who served as business manager last season, represented the city at the recent meeting in Tiffin.

Evans will also go to the minor league confab to be held in Milwaukee late this month as the Mansfield representatives, we understand.

The outlook for the coming season is not as drab as pictured several weeks ago. Of course, nothing is definite, you understand.

BUCYRUS MAY JOIN OHIO STATE LEAGUE.

President Harry Smith is now laying the foundation for a bigger 'n' better Ohio State league.

Two new cities are being sought to increase the membership of the Class D circuit to eight, and Smith appears to favor Bucyrus and Lima. He has already made contacts in these cities.

Johnny Risko

Bucyrus may enter the fold under the wing of "Flop" Trautman, a brother of George Trautman, president of the American association. It would not be difficult for Bucyrus to secure an affiliation through the A. A. prexy.

The Lima picture is not as bright, but Smith believes the city is interested.

JOHNNY RISKO TO TRY COMEBACK.

So Johnny Risko is going to try a comeback. What Risko does is his own business, of course, but his comeback will probably prove a failure. They never come back.

Willie Kamm is on the loose. The former Cleveland third sacker failed to impress his employer as a manager last summer, and now Willie is looking for a job. Being a bosum friend of Oscar Vitt, Kamm may return to the tribe in a coaching capacity. George Uhle and Wally Schang, who were Steve O'Neill's lieutenants, will not be re-hired, according to present indications.

Faculty Vetoes Co-ed Place Kickers.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The faculty of American university frowned officially on co-ed placement kickers today and told feminine students at the school to continue a spectators' role in intercollegiate football.

The faculty voted 21 to 4 to reject a plan under which a shapely co-ed would have been sent into the university's football lineup to kick goal after touchdown. Disappointed at the faculty veto, some students at the school were planning a mass demonstration in an attempt to reopen the issue.

Eyston Covets Mile Record

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah — (AP)—Britain's uncrowned king of speed, Capt. George E. T. Eyston, calmly regarded his three new records and observed today he would have to travel almost twice as fast Saturday to attain his chief objective.

"I hope to try for the top world speed record—the one-mile mark—in the Thunderbolt Saturday morning—or at the latest, Sunday," he said. "That car will have to go almost twice as fast as the Speed of the Winds."

In the Thunderbolt's sistercraft, Speed of the Winds, Eyston made a dawn-to-dark run of 2,000 miles yesterday to capture world records for 3,000 kilometers, 12 hours and 2,000 miles.

But it's the mile record he covets. Sir Malcolm Campbell set that record—301.1292 M. P. H. over a measured mile here in 1935.

Eyston shot his Thunderbolt over the mile last week at 309.6 M. P. H. before it broke down, unable to complete the return journey required to make the record official. No man ever before had reached that speed on land.

Willingness to Help Rival May Cost Bucks Title

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— A willingness to help a rival Big Ten school out of a tough spot in schedule-making may cost Ohio State a share in the Western Conference football championship this season.

This year marks only fourth time since Ohio State entered the Big Ten in 1913 that a Buck team has played six conference foes during a campaign. The normal number is five.

The presence of six Big Ten rivals on the Bucks' schedule this season and next came because L. W. St. John, veteran Ohio State athletic director, was willing to lend Indiana University a hand in its tough task of forming a schedule each season.

Indiana, because of adverse gridiron fortunes over a long period and a location not conducive to huge crowds at their home contests, experiences considerable trouble in forming a schedule.

Two years ago when the current schedule was made Alvin (Bo) McMillin, head football coach of the Hoosiers, was balked at every turn in attempting to complete his grid program. Finally he appealed to St. John and Francis A. Schmidt, the Buck coach, to help him out. Although five conference games previously had been arranged the Buck officials waived their desire to take on an intersectional foe and scheduled Indiana.

Saturday the Hoosiers come here for a title-bearing game in the Big Ten and may knock the team that game them a "lift" out of the Western Conference race.

Madison In Test

Faces Red Birds In Important Mid-State League Tilt at Loudonville.

MADISON HIGH'S rampaging Rams hold the spotlight on this week's Mid-State league program when they invade Loudonville Friday for an important grid battle with the Red Birds.

Coach Al Fendrick's proteges, undefeated and untied, face their stiffest test of the season to date against the once-beaten Loudonville aggregation.

Red Birds Improve.

The Fendrickmen have marched through Danville, Butler and Fredericktown in great shape, but clash with a club Friday which has improved greatly since the season opened.

The Red Birds recently handed the second-string Mansfield reserves their first defeat to a 27 to 0 tune, and lost to Bellville by one touchdown.

The green-uniformed Rams will be at full strength for the first time this season. All of the cripples have returned.

While Madison attempts to continue its winning ways, its chief rival for the league crown, Mt. Gilead, is idle.

In the other Mid-State affairs on tap, Butler brings its season to a close Friday at Fredericktown in a battle that will decide the cellar position, and Bellville, defeated only by Mt. Gilead, is host to Danville for a tussle with the Blue Devils today.

'Upsets to Disappear,' Coach Bachman Says.

EAST LANSING, MICH — (AP) —The "upset" in football will get so plentiful there soon will be no upsets.

That's what Coach Charley Bachman of Michigan State says. Surprise scores will get to be matter-of-fact news, he predicts.

The reason? The smaller colleges are getting better players from well-coached high school teams. Because the small colleges get the players, they are leaving the pushover class.

NEW MANSFIELD FIGHTER

"Battling Val" Jackson, above, a lightweight of Saginaw, Mich., is a new addition to Johnny Newton's boxing stable. The Saginaw slugger is now working out at the Arena A. C. under the guidance of Newton in preparation for an active winter campaign.

Young Jackson gained an enviable record during his campaigning in Michigan rings. His victims include Roy Fedon, Joe Bolenda, Roger Bernard, Orville Drouillard, Bobby Thompson, Johnny Misko and the St. Louis Kid, who appeared on a Mansfield card last winter.

Open League Season Saturday Against Philadelphia Entry.

PHILADELPHIA — The Cleveland Barons reached the Quaker City today in preparation for the International-American league opener against the Philadelphia Ramblers Saturday.

Rather than stop off in Cleveland on their way from Winnipeg, the training base for three weeks, Coach Bill Cook of the Barons decided to immediately invade enemy territory and prepare for the league inaugural. In two exhibition games, the Barons defeated the Ramblers, 3 to 0 and 4 to 1.

War Admiral Wins Pimlico

BALTIMORE—(U.P.)—Samuel D. Riddle's War Admiral, undefeated 3-year-old champion and leading money-winner, captured the Pimlico Special and its purse of $5,680 from a field of four at Pimlico yesterday.

The fleet-footed Man o' War colt increased his money winning margin by $9,382 50 over Seabiscuit, his closest rival, and boosted his 1937 earnings to $166,500.

Brandywine stable's Marked General finished second, two lengths behind the winner with Mrs. Emil Denemark's War Minstrel third. Millsdale stable's Bottlecap brought up the rear.

California still has to qualify for the western bowl bid, which means conquering Washington, Oregon and Stanford. But it's no secret that the Bears prefer one of the far eastern elevens.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The Kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

BIG YEAR FOR COOPER

He's Leading Trophy Candidate, Also Money Winner.

BOSTON — (U.P.) — Lighthorse Harry Cooper not only holds the distinction of being the outstanding money winner among professional golfers but virtually has clinched the P. G. A. trophy, P. G. A. tournament manager Fred Corcoran announced today.

Cooper has amassed a total of 490 points in his bid for the trophy as result of participation in 26 tournaments since January while his earnings total $13,573.69. His nearest rival in the competition is Ralph Guldahl, who has collected 366 points.

Remain In Pro League

Cleveland Rams, Despite Poor Finish, Return Next Season.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Despite prospects of not only finishing the season in the cellar but in the red as well, the Cleveland Rams will be back in the National pro football league next fall. Homer Marshman, the club president who announced today the team is going to stay in the big time, said the task of lining up new material was his main concern.

The Rams play the Lions at Detroit Sunday, leaving only games with the Washington Redskins and the Chicago Bears to wind up the season.

STEELE BOUT POSTPONED

NEW YORK — (UP) — The 12-round non-title fight between Middleweight Champion Freddie Steele of Tacoma, Wash., and Fred Apostoli, San Francisco, scheduled for Nov. 12, today was postponed indefinitely because of injuries which Steele suffered while training at Summit, N. J.

NO LONGER A "VICTIM OF HABIT"

SAY, OLD MAN - ISN'T IT ABOUT TIME YOU CHANGED YOUR BRAND OF SMOKES? LOOK AT THIS ASH-TRAY---FULL OF HALF-SMOKED CIGARS. WHY KEEP ON BUYING A CIGAR YOU CAN'T ENJOY - AND THAT WASTES YOUR MONEY?
WELL - JUST HABIT I GUESS. BUT WHY CHANGE? I CAN'T AFFORD EXPENSIVE CIGARS - AND THE OTHERS ALL SEEM ALIKE / THEY GET SO BITTER AND BITEY I HAVE TO CHUCK THEM AWAY HALF-SMOKED
THAT PROVES YOU'RE A VICTIM OF HABIT - OR YOU WOULD BE SMOKING PHILLIES. HERE'S ONE---TRY IT---YOU'LL FIND NO BITTERNESS OR BITE BECAUSE BAYUK OWNS A PROCESS THAT TAKES THEM OUT OF THE PHILLIES TOBACCOS.
LATER
SAY, BILL - THIS PHILLIES IS HONESTLY THE BEST CIGAR I'VE SMOKED FOR YEARS. DIDN'T KNOW THERE WAS SUCH A MILD, SMOOTH CIGAR ON THE MARKET. THAT BAYUK PROCESS IS A GREAT THING FOR CIGAR SMOKERS.

WHY PHILLIES ARE FREE OF BITTER, BITEY, RASPY TASTE

Bayuk selects and buys for PHILLIES the finest and mildest types of Havana, Domestic and Sumatra tobaccos. They are the very pick of the crops.

All PHILLIES tobaccos are aged and mellowed for at least two years—and are cured by the same methods used in making the most expensive cigars . . . BUT BAYUK DOESN'T STOP HERE.

Bayuk owns an exclusive, patented process that removes the bitter oils and harsh elements that ordinary curing methods don't, and can't, get out. No other cigar manufacturer can use this process.

Losses Running to Two or More Points Plentiful Despite Buying.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Stock market leaders continued their downward movement today, with steels and motors conspicuous on the drift.

While mild buying support appeared near the second hour, losses running to two or more points were plentiful. Activity was moderate.

Rumors persisted something would be done by the administration regarding gold, and Dome, McIntyre and Alaska Juneau edged forward.

Outstanding news which might have inspired either buyers or sellers was scarce, but further sliding tendencies displayed by commodities apparently depressed sentiment. Secondary bonds were also soft.

Among items studied in boardrooms before the start of trading were:

Stock exchange members' collateral borrowings in October were off $313,479,644 to a total of $725,622,872. The sharp decrease was attributed largely to the corresponding downturn in securities prices.

TRAIN WRECKED

Fireman Killed, Engineer Hurt as Cow Derails Engine.

BATESVILLE, Miss—(AP)—The Illinois Central's "Panama Limited" was wrecked near here early today and its fireman, James White of Memphis, was killed. His body was found beneath the wreckage of the engine.

The engineer, Charles Barnett, also of Memphis, was seriously injured, his right arm and left hand being severed. None of the passengers was hurt.

The engine, and two express cars, carrying race horses to New Orleans overturned, blocking rail traffic. Three of the horses were killed. Other cars of the train, en route from Chicago to New Orleans, remained on the rails, with the exception of a buffet car which did not overturn.

Conductor Joe F. Beuson, of Memphis, said cows on the track caused the accident. The crushed body of a cow was found in front of the engine.

WARNS AGAINST 'SLUM' PARTY

Labor In Duchess' Home Town Raps Windsors' Visit In Germany, Hit Bedaux.

his wife continued their study of labor problems with Adolf Hitler, the world's most notorious foe of democracy . . .

"(They) have announced that they will study labor in this country under the guidance of Charles Bedaux, whose vicious adaptation of the Taylor system like the labor appeasement program of Germany would apply the stretch-out system to labor in this country . . .

On the former Baltimore debutant who married a member of a royal family the document said she was "One who while a resident here in no way showed the slightest concern nor sympathy for problems of labor or of the poor and needy."

Joseph P. McCurdy, president, in introducing the resolution laid particular stress on labor's antipathy toward Bedaux, whom he termed an "arch enemy" of labor.

"This man, this Charles Bedaux, created more harm and havoc here in America with his speed-up and stretch-out system . . . than any other thing that has cropped out against the labor movement in many years," he said.

THEATER

FREDDIE BARTHOLOMEW, who has been so much in the news lately, is pretty much boy after all. At the recent preview of "Conquest," which stars Garbo and Charles Boyer, Freddie wore his first long pants. He created so much furore that finally spectators yelled for him to take his coat off so they could see the full glory of the long pants. But Freddy blushingly refused. The reason came out later. In putting on his first long suit, with man-style shirt, the shirt sleeves were much too long, and there was no time to fix them up. So Freddie did the only sensible thing—he cut the sleeves off above the elbows. "Kind of jagged edges, you know," he explained. The picture, incidentally, is the first in which Garbo has ever been outshone by a fellow star, and reviewers say that Boyer does just that.

McGillicuddy's The Name.

Under the srage name of Terry Rooney, Thaddeus McGillicuddy makes a success as a hoofer and the movies embrace him, in James Cagney's new picture, "Something To Sing About," showing at the Madison. But the movie makers do with him what they do with too many players—after securing him because they liked his talent, they set about making an entirely different person of him, and all with a very superior air. Cagney sings, dances and romps through the feature with his usual gusto and lusty characterization. The dancing is bona fide, as Cagney was a vaudeville dancer before going into pictures. Evelyn Daw, Mona Berrie and William Frawley are seen in his support.

Three Color Revue.

Walter Wanger, who did one of the very best of the color film jobs in "Trail of The Lonesome Pine" turns to colors for his smart beauty and fashion revue which he presents in "Walter Wagner Vogues of 1938," which the Ohio is showing the last half of the week. Most of it is done in dull grey backgrounds, with rich coloring for the clothes and furnishings. The make ups of players, a new liquid process, is said to give a more natural flesh tone in colors. The show features a number of gorgeous beauties in fashions that will make women sigh with envy. Music and dancing and an interesting story of the usual musical variety are combined with the talents of Warner Baxter, Joan Bennett and Mischa Auer.

Love on Skates.

A love story framed against the background of ice hockey as a profession is found in "Idol of The Crowd" which brings John Wayne and Sheila Bromley to the Majestic for Friday and Saturday. Wayne is shown as a young amateur hockey player who turns professional against his will because he must have the money. As a professional player he sees a new side to the game, and comes in contact with gamblers and shady characters of all kinds. The second feature is an all color film, "The Phantom of Santa Fe," romance of a bygone day, with Nina Quartaro, Norman Kerry and Frank Mayo.

Matronly Missus America.

Victor Moore and Helen Broderick who brought their talent for mirth making to "Swing Time" and "We're On The Jury," are presented in a third comedy, "Meet The Missus," at the Ritz. Pretty Anne Shirley and Alan Bruce have the romantic leads. Miss Broderick has aspirations to be matronly "Missus America," and goes to Atlantic City to join in a national contest. Moore, her protesting husband and Miss Shirley, an even more protesting daughter, follow her. Most of the fun is at Atlantic City. A Western film, "Lightin' Crandall" with Bob Steele, will be shown also.

ROOSEVELT TO SEE LA GUARDIA

President to Confer With New York Mayor Who Led Rout of Tammany Hall.

ulation as to its political significance, inasmuch as the mayor established himself as an important national figure in becoming the first "reform" mayor in New York's history to succeed himself.

During the campaign, Mr. Roosevelt was careful to avoid any appearance of taking sides, and it was generally believed that he was not particularly disappointed by the LaGuardia landslide. When early elections returns Tuesday night showed that the mayor had defeated the Democratic candidate, Jeremiah T. Mahoney, the president congratulated him by telephone.

LaGuardia was opposed by Postmaster General James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee, Governor Herbert H. Lehman and U. S. Senator Robert F. Wagner, but had the active support of Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes.

LaGuardia and Thomas E. Dewey, the 35-year old "rackets buster," who shattered Tammany's 20-year rule over the district attorneyship of New York county, conferred on plans for next year. The district attorney-elect announced he would, "clean out" practically all of the 64 Tammany-appointed assistant district attorneys when he takes office Jan. 1. He indicated that one might be retained.

The mayor promised there would be no change in his policies during the next four years. "No mercy, no quarter, no consideration will be given to any criminal, racketeer, gangster, payroll leech or grafter," he said.

TOURIST CAMPS DO 25 MILLION BUSINESS NOW

Motor Traffic on Pacific Coast 25 Per Cent Greater Than In 1936.

SAN FRANCISCO—(U.P.)—Tourists driving all day find it's pleasant to pull up at sundown before the gate to an inviting camp. Probably there is a small store near the entrance, and circling back through a grove of trees are cabins. There's a shower, and a swing for the children. The air's good and the trees rustle during the night.

Tourist camps have come to present the foregoing picture to increasing thousands of business and vacation travelers every year. To some 16,000 others, tourist camps mean a business of $25,000,000 annually.

From Maine to California, and from Key West to Virginia City, Minn., tourists hardly can miss a comfortable camp. Some are palatial, others are plain. Some are bungalow hotels with every modern convenience, while others offer an unadorned cabin, of the wash bowl and pitcher variety.

Become Big Business.

In the Far West and Pacific Coast states, tourists camps have entered the realm of big business. They have made possible vacations in remote areas which may be reached only by motor and where hotels could not be economically erected. They have given the wayfarer access to the most beautiful areas of the inter-mountain and coast countries.

On the highways in California, Washington, Oregon, Nevada, Arizona and New York the gains in tourist trade have been particularly heavy the past year. Motor travel has increased more than 25 per cent in 1937 over 1936. Tourist camps have sprung up like mushrooms, many far from towns and cities, and situated in forests and beside streams or the rugged Pacific shore.

About 3,700 proprietors of tourist camps sell gasoline and oil. In these camps the traveler may rest, eat and re-fuel before starting on.

Camps Are Regulated.

Most states have enacted legislation for thorough supervision of camps as to cleanliness and sanitation. The establishment of chain systems of camps reaching from coast to coast has been underway for some time.

These are generally located at an average day's drive from each other. But independent camps dot the highways, and a motorist usually reaches a suitable one toward the end of a day.

Tourist camps have made possible vacations in desert areas for the vacationist of moderate means.

COVERS CHARITY

Missouri City Appropriation Ends Community Fund Drive.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. — (U.P.) — While other municipalities are going through their annual drives for Community Chest charity funds this fall, this community of 20,000 will enjoy a "breathing spell" in the knowledge that a full program of aid will go forward without the need of contributions.

The city administration stepped into the charity situation with the offer to provide the full $20,000 goal out of city surplus funds.

The offer came as generals, captains and business men workers of the community chest drive prepared to seek funds in a campaign they knew would be difficult.

Holds Wednesdays And Sundays Most Depressing Days

BOSTON— (INS)—Wednesday and Sunday are the two most depressing days of the week, according to Dr. Merrill Moore, Boston psychiatrist.

Dr. Moore, who has been studying suicide causes and effects since 1915, claims that self-destruction is a disease and can be cured, if properly treated.

Besides revealing that suicide, as a disease, can be cured, the psychiatrist revealed that the medical world, through the study of the aggressive social homologues of suicide, might bring about a crimeless and warless world.

Dr. Moore recently wrote an exhaustive paper on 1,147 cases of attempted suicide and since publication of the article on a national scale he has been swamped with letters from people contemplating taking their own lives and asking his help and advice.

GAME WARDENS TO GET RADIOS

State Acts To Speed Probe of Complaints From Farmers.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Game wardens' automobiles will be equipped with short wave police radio sets in an effort to facilitate enforcement of state game laws, under a plan adopted by the conservation council.

Complaints from farmers and land-owners will be transmitted to the highway patrol radio stations to be broadcast to the warden's cars.

Conservation Commissioner Laurence Wooddell, declaring that the quick transmission of information would result in greater efficiency in law enforcement, asked local law enforcement officers to transmit complaints received by them to the patrol radio units. Patrol stations are located at Findlay, Massillon, Wilmington, Cambridge and Columbus.

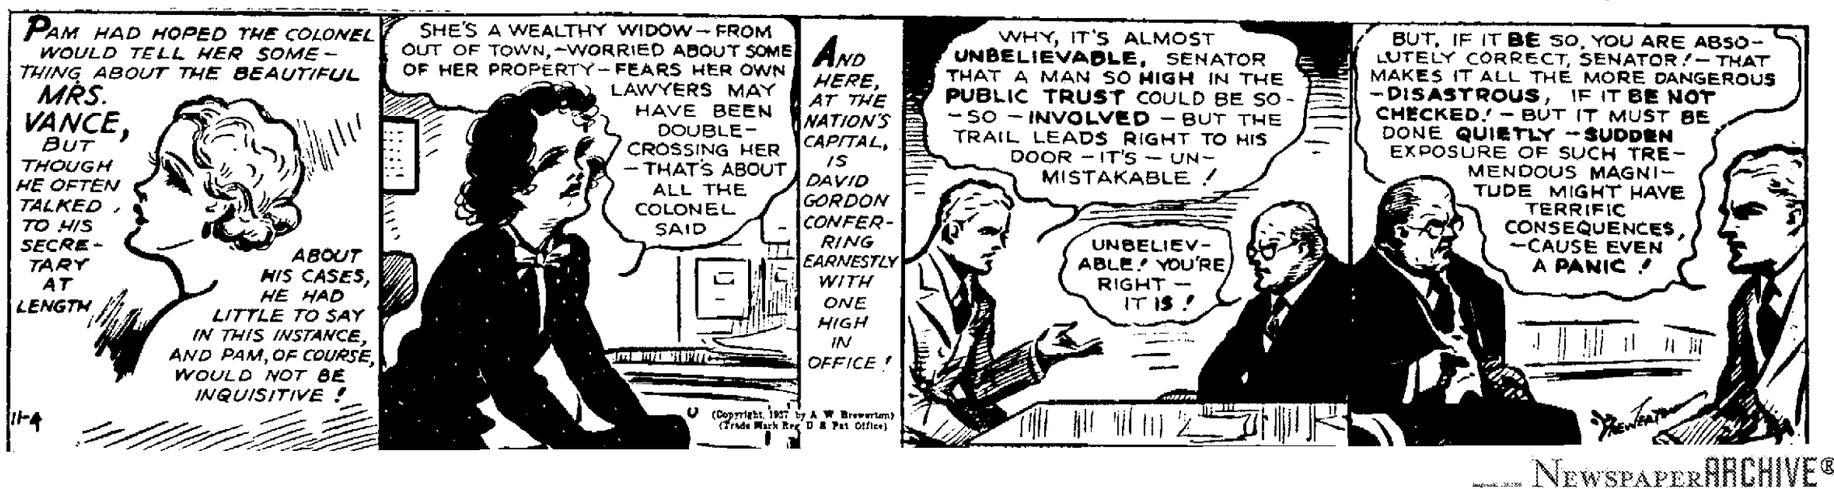
PAM—"Unbelievable!" By A. W. Brewerton



PAM HAD HOPED THE COLONEL WOULD TELL HER SOMETHING ABOUT THE BEAUTIFUL MRS. VANCE, BUT THOUGH HE OFTEN TALKED TO HIS SECRETARY AT LENGTH ABOUT HIS CASES, HE HAD LITTLE TO SAY IN THIS INSTANCE, AND PAM, OF COURSE, WOULD NOT BE INQUISITIVE!
SHE'S A WEALTHY WIDOW—FROM OUT OF TOWN,—WORRIED ABOUT SOME OF HER PROPERTY—FEARS HER OWN LAWYERS MAY HAVE BEEN DOUBLE-CROSSING HER—THAT'S ABOUT ALL THE COLONEL SAID
AND HERE, AT THE NATION'S CAPITAL, IS DAVID GORDON CONFERRING EARNESTLY WITH ONE HIGH IN OFFICE!
WHY, IT'S ALMOST UNBELIEVABLE, SENATOR THAT A MAN SO HIGH IN THE PUBLIC TRUST COULD BE SO--SO—INVOLVED—BUT THE TRAIL LEADS RIGHT TO HIS DOOR—IT'S—UNMISTAKABLE!
UNBELIEVABLE! YOU'RE RIGHT— IT IS!
BUT, IF IT BE SO, YOU ARE ABSOLUTELY CORRECT, SENATOR!—THAT MAKES IT ALL THE MORE DANGEROUS—DISASTROUS, IF IT BE NOT CHECKED!—BUT IT MUST BE DONE QUIETLY—SUDDEN EXPOSURE OF SUCH TREMENDOUS MAGNITUDE MIGHT HAVE TERRIFIC CONSEQUENCES,—CAUSE EVEN A PANIC!

CLOSE RACES MARK TOWNSHIP SCHOOL VOTING

Incumbent Tops 5 Candidates For Madison Board; Other Winners Are Named.

Featured by one of the closest races in the county, the Madison township board of education election Tuesday brought winning margins to L. C. Hughes, Esley Cleckner and Fred A. Matthes, a tabulation of the township vote showed today.

Hughes, only incumbent to file for the township board, headed the ticket with 324 votes, with Cleckner polling 296 votes to place second in a field of five. Matthes was a close third with 294.

The trio of successful candidates shaded Earl E. Leininger and F. W. Wagner, the other two in the contest. Leininger received 258 votes and Wagner 213.

One of the stand-out school board contests in the county was in the new Union rural district created last spring by consolidating Franklin and Weller townships under the Ohio Foundation plan.

New Board Re-Elected.

All five members of the new board appointed from the combined membership of the two township boards were re-elected Tuesday. Leland Clever received 251 votes to top the group. Other incumbents who will continue on the board are Mrs. Marjorie Burkholder, Lester Lantz, Ralph Osbun and Mrs. Ozra Ferrell. Four other candidates for the board were defeated.

Osbun and Mrs. Ferrell were elected for two-year terms, while the others will serve four years. A similar situation exists at Bellville and Butler where new districts were formed several months ago. On all other boards in the county three members were elected Tuesday to serve four-year terms.

The list of winners follows:

Bloominggrov township — Raymond Wolford, Charles Laser and H. C. Winters.

Bellville (short term) — W. L. Garber and Fred W. Dill; (long ter)—Carl McFerren, Paul F. Yarger and Blake Garber.

Butler rural—Otis V. Tucker, W. J. Forbes and Marion Taylor.

Butler village (short term)—A. J. Grubb and Hallie G. Reed; (long term)—James McFarland, Percy Crunkilton and Kinsey R. Morgan.

Cass township—Frank Dawson, Darley Arnold and N. M. Ruckman.

Lexington—Lloyd Clever, Aaron Lockheart and Lucy Pollock.

Mifflin township—V. R. Lemon, R. E. Barr and G. S. Oswalt.

Monroe township—S. R. Baughman, H. M. McConnell and H. D. Crawford.

Plymouth village—Thurman R. Ford, Earl W. Heath and Floyd Steele.

Sharon township (all names written in)—Martin Schreck, Newton Briner and Earl Brissel.

Springfield township—Walter A. Turner, H. W. Taylor and Louise Walker.

Washington township—Robert R. Hammett, Thomas McBride and William H. McClelland.

TEA IN CEYLON BITTER

COLOMBO—(U.P.)—It is difficult to get a decent cup of tea in the trains of Ceylon, the home of tea. That is the complaint with which H. C. N. Yates, chairman of the Dimbulla Planters' association, confounded the Tea Propaganda Board meeting here to decide on means to popularize the beverage throughout the world.

Figures In Stabbing Deaths

Quarrel which climaxed a gay costume party at Butler, Pa., ended with two women being knifed to death, a third woman dying and a youth, said by police to have done the stabbing, wounding himself. The youth, Floyd Tait, 19, being held by police as the alleged stabber, was found in the hallway of an apartment house with his arm around his sweetheart. Dorothy Bash, 19, who was dead. Inside the apartment was Tait's mother, dead, and another woman, stabbed severely. Tait and Miss Bash are shown above.

QUINTS LIKE SPINACH, DON'T LIKE CANDY, NURSE DISCLOSES

PITTSBURGH —(INS)— The Dionne quintuplets like spinach and they don't like candy!

And although they are French-Canadian lassies, they speak English too—but not much, the sum of their knowledge of English being "Oh, boy," "'Ello," and "Bye Bye."

The lowdown on the world's most famous babies was revealed by their nurse, Miss Yvonne Leroux, while on a visit to Pittsburgh.

At the same time Miss Leroux revealed the reactions of Papa Dionne, Mama Dionne, and Dr. Dafoe upon the birth of the babies:

Papa Dionne: "I ought to be shot."

Mama Dionne: "What will the neighbors think."

Dr. Dafoe: "Well . . . "

The Dionne quintuplets, said Miss Leroux, are quite religious, calling down the blessing of God once a day upon those they love most—which consists of their mama and papa, their doctor, their nurses, their policemen, their pet frogs and butterflies, the birds and the flowers.

"They pray when they get up and when they go to bed," said their nurse. "After they pray they ask God to bless everybody. When we were teaching them to make the sign of the cross Emilie was so enthusiastic that she started on the top of her head and tried to reach around to touch her backbone to make the biggest cross she could."

MISSOURI TRIES PAROLE REFORM

New Board Created to Place State System on Par With Federal Government's.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.—(U.P.)—A new board of paroles and probations created to give Missouri a "model" parole administration similar to the federal government's has begun its search for the "forgotten man" in the Missouri penitentiary.

The board, successor to a single commissioner, will study the records of 4,800 Missouri convicts with the view of recommending releases to Gov. Lloyd C. Stark for all who have "reformed." The board also will have jurisdiction over releases from the four state reformatories.

Sponsors of the law creating the board said they were moved by a desire to give all reformed convicts a chance for supervised freedom without regard to politics. They also pointed out that a good parole law would relieve crowded conditions at the Missouri prison.

For those prisoners whose recommendations are acted upon favorably by the governor, the board will provide a supervisory program through a staff of parole officers. Circuit courts also may call on the board officers to supervise persons on bench parole who never reach the penitentiary.

The three-member board is composed of two members appointed by the governor, with the lieutenant governor as ex-officio chairman.

New 'Miracle Man' of Politics and Family

Hailed as the new "miracle man" of politics, because of his skyrocketing to national prominence as special rackets prosecutor, Thomas E. Dewey of New York City now moves up the political ladder as district attorney of New York county. Dewey, shown with his wife and mother at their New York home, ran as a Republican Liberal and took the last stronghold of Tammany. Only 35, Dewey now is hailed as a "natural" for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in New York next year. He is a native of Michigan and a graduate of the University of Michigan (1923.)

GEORGIA OPENS RUSTLERS' WAR

Stock Producers Organize Vigilante Groups In Move to Curb Cattle Thefts.

VALDOSTA, Ga — (U.P.) — Streamlined bands of cattle thieves have caused South Georgia stock producers to organize vigilante groups to wipe out rustlers who specialize in motorized raids on barns and hog pens.

Livestock producers in Lowdnes county—heart of Georgia's cattle industry that is worth about $70,000,000 a year—have formed a "Livestock Protective Association." Organization of vigilante bands in other sections of the state is in progress.

The drastic steps to curb cattle stealing were caused by increasingly frequent raids at night on isolated farms. The modern cattle rustlers operate in trucks. They break into barns and load the cattle into the trucks. Enclosures near farmhouses also are raided.

The rustlers also have extended their activity into hog pens where the farmers believe chloroform is used to quiet the squealing porkers while they are being transferred to trucks.

Members of the vigilante bands said most of the stolen livestock is slaughtered as soon as possible. The hides are buried and the meat rushed to some nearby markets.

Virtually all of the cattle stealing is done at night. Officials in the larger livestock-producing counties said virtually every farmer had suffered the loss of "at least one or two head of cattle in recent months."

"FOUND LOOSE" MAIL SAVED

ST. LOUIS —(U.P.)—Postal authorities here have established a special "Found Loose" department for the benefit of persons who absent-mindedly attempt to mail from 1,200 to 1,500 odd articles every month.

RELAXES RULE ON YULE MAIL

Postoffice Department Suspends Order on Package Stamps.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Christmas stamps, seals and labels to aid charitable objects may not be attached to the address side of mail under postal regulations. Mail bearing such stamps must be sent to the dead letter offices or returned to senders under the rule.

Hallee Branch, second assistant postmaster general, has just informed postmasters however, that as an exceptional measure these rules are suspended from November 15 to January 15 this season if, through inadvertance, senders have affixed such stamps to the address side. In previous years much Christmas mail bearing the stamps on the address side has been held up.

MONTANA DAM STORES WATER FROM GLACIER

Rock-Ribbed Barrier Is Most Isolated Project In U. S.; Help to Farms.

RED LODGE, Mont.—(U.P.)—In the gnarled hinterland of the towering Beartooth mountains, man has taken a seven-league step in his age-old feud against drouth, the perennial liberttme of crops.

Glacier lake dam, the highest and most isolated structure of its kind in America, located 24½ miles by road and foot trail south of here, has been completed and accepted by the Montana Water Conservation board.

Built as a supplemental reservoir to supply water to 54,000 acres of rich farm land in Rock creek valley from Red Lodge to Silesia, Glacier lake dam is notable for the spectacular grandeur of its setting and its extreme isolation.

Carved from a rock-ribbed palisade, unfathomed Glacier lake is nourished by everlasting glaciers and melting snows. At an elevation of 9,750 feet, the lake is surrounded by peaks from 11,000 to 12,000 feet high.

Solid Rock Foundation.

The dam is a rock filled project with a maximum height of 52 feet (5 feet free-board), with a crest length of 730 feet and a top width of 10 feet. The upstream slope is 1:1; downstream slope, 1½:1, and foundation and abutments are in solid rock.

The back or downstream part of the dam is composed of rock fill. Most of the rock varied from 2 to 10 cubic feet while being loaded by hand. After the shovel came on the job, the rocks averaged one cubic yard in size. Voids were well filled with rock which graded down to three inches.

On the upstream face is a hand-placed rock rubble wall which varies from four to six feet in thickness. The face was gouted. On the gouted face was placed a concrete slab, re-inforced with electric welded fabric, varying from six to twelve inches in thickness.

The concrete face has expansion joints at every 25 feet. The concrete slap is keyed into solid rock at the toe of the dam.

A spillway with a crest of 90 feet was built in rock, thanks to the presence of a hump of rock which rises in the center of the dam site.

Across and beneath the present outlet of the lake a tunnel, 6 by 4½ feet wide and 115 feet long, was drilled. The tunnel taps the lake about 6 feet below the normal August level and forms a permanent outlet for the reservoir.

A vertical shaft from the top of the dam into the tunnel provides for the gate chamber and operation of the gate. A cut-off trench was excavated 18 inches into solid rock.

The dam, costing $82,731, was built as an auxiliary to the $450,000 Cooney dam, which is located on Red Lodge creek.

HUNTS AT HOME

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Conn.—(INS)—Hunters are visiting Mrs. Addie Helm for advice. Sitting in her living room, Mrs. Helm bagged a partridge—and without using a gun.

The bird crashed through the window, landing almost in Mrs. Helm's lap.

Mrs. Helm had partridge for dinner that evening.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1937.

With the 1938 automobiles already on the market, this has seemed like a short winter.

The blight that destroyed chestnut trees appears to have had no effect on the crop of radio chestnuts.

The Duke of Windsor has decided that he wants to be of some use in the world—which is at least a worthy aspiration.

Looking to Cause and Effect.

PAUL H. NYSTROM, professor of marketing, Columbia university, in a recent address before the Boston Conference on Distribution, comprehensively surveyed the deep-seated causes of current labor troubles.

"It is impossible," he said, "for this country to go on indefinitely losing from three to five million man-days of labor per month, due to strikes, as we have been doing during the past few months, without serious harm, not only to the strikers themselves but also to business and to the nation at large."

Business and industry, Mr. Nystrom pointed out, are favorably disposed toward the principle of collective bargaining, but fear the evils that have attached themselves to the collective bargaining movement. Strife within the ranks of labor itself, unauthorized strikes, an avalanche of petty grievances and red tape, are a few of the things that have made managements move cautiously in signing collective bargaining agreements.

Often employers are forced to contribute so much of their time in solving labor difficulties that there is little opportunity left to get new business, or earn enough money to pay taxes and meet payrolls.

Chief Bates Gives Informative Talk.

WITHOUT wishing to suggest anything that might infringe too greatly on time that Meade K. Bates is required to devote to performance of his duties as chief of Mansfield's police department, it must at least be intimated that as many people as possible should be given opportunity to hear Chief Bates speak on the subject of local police problems—and also to sketch briefly the training methods of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, in which he recently received a course of instruction.

In a talk given at a meeting of a women's club this week Chief Bates covered this subject in an interesting and informative way. It is important that Mansfield people in general gain a better idea of the work of the police department, and of the ways in which it can be made more efficient.

Chief Bates—fortunately—has ability to present his ideas in a clear-cut, understandable way, and—however much he may dislike the idea—he is hereby recommended for consideration by program chairmen who have not already booked their speakers.

Curing Accident Repeaters.

AUTOMOBILE accident repeaters can be cured. That is the gist of an article in Public Safety, by Edward L. Yardan, describing the results of a corrective system applied last year by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles in Massachusetts to 500 drivers selected as possessing the worst accident records in the Commonwealth.

Every one of these drivers had been involved in a number of accidents. One man, for instance, had injured several pedestrians by striking them with the right side of his car. Tests disclosed a weakness in his right eye, which was corrected with glasses. Another driver had had his car rammed three times from the rear. Tests showed his brake reaction to be exceptionally fast and he was advised to watch out for the car in the rear when making sudden stops. So it went with all 500. At the end of the test instruction period, the 500 accident repeaters were allowed to drive again. Eight months later the Registrar assembled their records. The 500 had driven an aggregate of more than 3,250,000 miles in that period. Not one of them had become involved in a serious accident. Only three of them had had any accidents at all.

It appears that enforced education would tend to reduce traffic accidents very materially. In most states, including Ohio, offending drivers are permitted to go out and repeat their errors.

Why Some Folks Seem 'Odd.'

BETTER understanding of the subject touched on by Elsie Robinson in her today's article, which appears on this page would go far toward explaining what is regarded as the "queerness" of some people.

In this article the author deals briefly with the phenomenon of sex and directs the thoughts of readers along lines into which science has been delving deeply in recent years.

Careful reading of this article will bring enlightenment on the reasons for differences in people and also accounts for Nature's occasional quirks in once in awhile failing to produce a distinctive sex.

It is an article which those who are inclined to be critical of other people should not fail to read.

Concealed Casualties.

A DISPATCH from Tokyo reports the Japanese press has stopped printing casualty lists. That means the Japanese government has stopped them although it has opened a special department in the Home Office to deal with relief for soldiers' families. The papers are still permitted to print a few biographies of officers or men whose death is presumed to be of general public interest. There were fifteen such biographies on one day recently.

Casualty lists make depressing reading, as Americans who were old enough to be interested in such things in 1917 and 1918 remember. Yet the absence of such lists will hardly deceive the Japanese into thinking few soldiers are being killed in battle. The sudden withdrawal of casualty lists, after their regular publication, may even create new alarm, suggesting that the government is trying to conceal great losses. At least, it would probably work out so in this country or in Europe. We are told that Orientals are indifferent to individual human lives; but in that case, why stop the flow of information?

THE LAST ROSE OF SUMMER

All of German Blood Called To Nazi Support

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—From Germany comes word now that all who happen to be of German blood wherever they may be must preach and practice Nazi ideology and accept Nazi folk biology and race policy and all that it may imply.

Moreover, says Col. Gen. Hermann Goering, "foreign nations and foreign statesmen must recognize that in the future fruitful relationships between German and other world peoples can take place only on the basis of the organized activity of foreign Germans as natural agents of German culture and commerce."

It so happens that there are a very great number of people of German blood in the United States. Herr Goering did not mention American Germans but his phraseology appeared to include all persons of German stock.

Germans abroad, said Goering, can be divided roughly into two classes, the conscious Germans and the unconscious Germans. The conscious Germans are those deeply aware of their German origin. These, he said, "must feel with the National Socialist ideology and eventually accept it wholeheartedly."

* * *

Many Included.

IN THAT group perhaps he would include the parading Nazi organizations in New Jersey and elsewhere. Among those who are not fully conscious of their obligations, he might possibly include the large number of Pennsylvania Germans.

Altogether it seems likely the United States must harbor a goodly number of the 30,000,000 people of German blood who, Goering said, live outside of Germany. One out of every three Germans, he said, lives abroad.

Now a few weeks ago when Foreign Minister Von Neurath loosed a similar sweeping claim upon the loyalty of all Germans, no matter where they lived, Secretary of State Hull answered. He explained that when Germans came to this country and took out citizenship papers, they were no longer German citizens but were Americans. As such they could not be committing their services to Hitler. Von Neurath replied that of course Secretary Hull was exactly right.

For two days after the recent Goering outburst, we waited for the state department to give a reply similar to the one given Neurath; and when none came, it seemed wise to learn why.

* * *

Unofficial Spokesman.

AN EXPERIENCED gentleman in the state department who had spent many years of his diplomatic life in and around Germany said this:

In the first place Goering, unlike Von Neurath, is not the official spokesman for the Reich on foreign affairs. He is Hitler's Secretary Ickes. His business, while more inclusive than Ickes,' is largely interior. So there was no reason for Secretary Hull to pay any attention to him.

Besides, said the experienced gentleman, Goering's words, and perhaps those of Von Neurath as well, were intended mainly for Germans in those countries right next door to the Reich. Each was a sort of fireside speech for the benefit of Germans in Poland, Alsace-Lorraine, Austria, Czechoslovakia, the city of Danzig, and nearby points.

So said our experienced diplomat, when the United States bustles in with objections to these siren words. German officials are honestly surprised. Somewhat as if mamma had called the children to come to supper and found the children from the orphanage trooping in.

Listen, World!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

We're Both Adam and Eve Under the Skin.

PEOPLE don't like Harold Wilson. Even as a little tyke the other youngsters jeered at him . . . refused to let him join their games . . . called him "Sissy" Wilson.

Instead of battling it out with them, Harold would go off alone, spend hours day-dreaming, help his mother around the house. Once his mother boasted that he made better cookies than she—and the boys razzed him about it for weeks. Changed his nickname from "Sissy" to "Cookie" . . .

Folks, of course, blamed his mother for it all. Said she'd coddled him because he was an only son . . . petted him when he didn't want to fight or get dirty like a regular fellow. Now that he's forty . . . a fussy bachelor in a trick apartment . . . people still despise him and blame her. "It's a crime," they say, "to mark a child for life, like that!"

BUT IS HAROLD "MARKED"? HAS HIS MOTHER MADE A MESS OF HIM . . . OR IS HE A PERFECTLY NATURAL HUMAN BEING, EVEN THOUGH HE DOES NOT CONFORM TO OUR NOTION OF A NORMAL MALE?

* * *

MARTHA HAWKINS is another social misfit. Martha is everything that Harold isn't . . . active, aggressive, "masculine." Likes to wear mannish clothes—enjoys mannish sports. Men, however, aren't overly fond of Martha. They think she's queer . . . duck if they see her coming.

This time it's Dad who gets the blame. Old Jim Hawkins had wanted a son . . . failing to get one had raised Martha as a boy. "Too bad to turn a nice girl like that into a freak!"

BUT IS MARTHA A FREAK? OR IS SHE AS NORMAL AS ANY OTHER WOMAN, EVEN THOUGH SHE FOLLOWS AN UNUSUAL PATTERN?

* * *

SCIENCE at last is daring to ask these questions . . . daring to challenge the cruel contempt which Society has meted out to its Harolds and Marthas since time immemorial. In laboratories and class rooms, psychologists and biologists labor to discover why Harold and Martha "are that way" and find amazing answers . . . answers which could change our whole social attitude toward the "sissy" boy, the "mannish" girl.

For these answers show that there is no such thing as a masculine or a feminine sex. There is only sex which, from the instant of conception, is a mixture of both father and mother.

We begin as cells . . . cells which contain both male and female elements . . . AND FOR THE FIRST FEW WEEKS OF OUR PRENATAL LIFE WE HAVE NO SEX . . . WE ARE NEITHER BOY NOR GIRL BUT BOTH, IN ONE CONTAINER. Then gradually the ovum takes on its future form . . . assumes definite sex characteristics.

BUT WHATEVER THE OUTWARD FORM, THE DUAL NATURE NEVER CEASES . . . EMOTIONALLY WE REMAIN BOTH MALE AND FEMALE UNTIL WE DIE.

It is impossible to estimate the cruelty which has been inflicted, the misery caused, by our ignorance of these facts. From generation to generation we have handed down a rigid conception of how "a manly man" and "a womanly woman" should feel and act . . . and heaven help the unfortunate mortal who dares to not conform to this conception. We are as vicious as savages in our punishment of such diverts.

This is particularly true of marriage. Innumerable wives have divorced their husbands, not because of any definite fault, but simply because said husbands failed to fit the traditional heroic husband concept. Like most of our sentimental notions, this concept is 99 per cent cuckoo. It's as "natural" for a man to be timid and sensitive as it is for a woman . . . as "natural" for a woman to be adventurous and aggressive as it is for a man.

Neither sex has any monopoly on any set of reactions. Social convention and environment have forced our behavior into social molds—but we all are both Adam and Eve, under the skin. And we'd all be infinitely happier . . . make far greater progress as individuals . . . if we'd accept these facts and stop acting like a lot of headhunters . . . "liquidating" the wretched mortals who don't happen to fit our piffling patterns.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

"Showing the White Feather".

It is sometimes as hard—perhaps harder—to catch up with a general, erroneous belief as with a lie.

Consider, for example, our idiom, "show the white feather," which connotes cowardice, fear, inability to "take it."

"Showing the white feather" is a direct carry-over from the parlance of the cock-pit.

Any devotee of this sport will assure you that a pure-bred gamecock has no trace of white in his plumage.

The slightest suggestion of white in a feather is presumed proof positive that he is a mongrel bird, which, pitted in combat against a thoroughbred, will never stand the gaff.

For this idea there does not appear to be any reliable foundation, either in the modern science of breeding fowl or in what we have learned of the thoughts on the subject of the old English gamebred fanciers who judged the fighting qualities of their cocks by the hardness rather than the color or markings of the plumage.

WORDS OF THE WISE

The reverence of a man's self is, next to religion, the chiefest bridle of all vices.—Francis Bacon.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL—

Relief Again Becomes Major Problem.

THE BUDGET will not be balanced. It cannot be. A new emergency will have to be met.

A census of unemployed is not needed to certify that there now are millions.

Local officials are appalled by the calls for relief. They are appalled because, locally, they cannot begin to handle the situation. It is a matter for the federal government.

This column, backed by competent observations, has been making known the fact that "prosperity" has been based largely on government spending.

Indeed, in 1933, when the method of "spending our way out of the depression" and "priming the pump" and forcing prices up by reducing the value of the dollar was instigated, this column remarked that, if the law of economics held true (and when doesn't it?) the apparent prosperity would collapse if free interchange of trade and widespread participation in the production of industry did not occur before the "shot in the arm" wore off.

It also was pointed out that, once the "shot in the arm" was resorted to, all elements of the population would become addicted to it and would continue to demand it even when the doctor became alarmed. And, the column added, the doctor might hesitate and might try to put off the surgical operation necessary—and then the patient might turn the old doctor out and try a fake doctor or two, and eventually go through horrible convulsions.

* * *

WHAT COURSE?

Dr. Roosevelt, himself realizing that a nation cannot spend more than it takes in, or is able to take in, recently began efforts to balance the budget. PWA and WPA were cut to the bone. Nearly every function was cut except military construction.

That was taking the drug away. It would have worked if there had been no international trade barriers and if our own vast population had sufficient purchasing power.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull had not gone far enough with his attempts to batter down trade and monetary walls. Indeed, much of the world was beginning new hate and boycott campaigns. (If you do not believe that affects Americans, merely ask some large exporting corporation.)

And the social and economic measures necessary to lay the foundation for a broader participation of the popplation in the product of its labor had been halted by stubborn opposition.

It is doubtful whether a bill restricting hours alone would aid. Anything running up costs at the moment simply would create additional burdens. Work will come for millions when costs can be got down, not up. We have to begin at the bottom again, make everything accessible to the mass of people—and have the profits accrue to them, not to a few.

That may sound to some as if it were socialism. Yet it is the advice of some of the soundest and most conservative economists of the day.

* * *

WIDER MARKETS.

The essential to business is wider markets. And it is the essential also to the worker and the farmer—and the government, which lives off its people.

There are only two sources for those markets: (1) Our own population, which can buy only as it participates in what it produces; and (2) peoples abroad, who can buy only if they can interchange goods and credits freely.

And both are barred, and would be barred as effectively under complete socialization as well as under the private-profit system, if pegged prices are maintained.

* * *

WHEN STOCKS DROPPED—

When security prices dropped, New Dealers blamed the crash on reactionaries trying to discredit the New Deal, while some businessmen blamed it on "fear of Roosevelt" or "stringent regulations by SEC." That would be too easy a solution, our economist friends say. Actually, the stock market is a barometer; or, rather, it is a thermometer, for it registers that which already is occurring. Business in basic industries already had receded in percentage more than the stock market drop. (Look up the percentages on steel production.)

Evidently on pressure from the White House, a freight rate increase was granted, margin requirements were reduced by the federal reserve board and President Roosevelt made renewed efforts to balance the budget.

The freight rate increase simply added to the burdens of business and the people and may retard traffic, the loosening up of stock exchange regulations simply gave greater freedom to speculators and gamblers and in no wise benefits the ordinary man, and the efforts to balance the budget simply meant an additional slashing of relief and public works' funds—adding to the burdens of local taxing units and intensifying human misery.

* * *

WHAT WE MAY EXPECT

Evidently that "medicine" has not taken. If the patient develops worse symptoms, we may expect very soon:

Work relief on a larger scale than ever, immense federal housing projects, added power projects, great irrigation and land reclamation programs. If the power projects continue, there evidently will be socialization of the power industry. (That is what power people themselves are saying, gloomily.) Other basic industries, such as railroads and mines and shipping, may follow.

Income taxes undoubtedly will be raised within a year or two; they will become more general. Gift and inheritance taxes also are likely to be increased.

* * *

A MOMENTOUS SESSION.

This coming special session of congress may be the most momentous of the Roosevelt administration.

Of course, if the government goes into spending again, "prosperity" will return once more, perhaps in greater degree than ever—till the next "shot in the arm" wears out.

P. S.: Wall Street is betting that the government will spend.

Timely Editorial

Courage In Industry.

A great many factors contribute to make the national economic mechanism function smoothly or the reverse. But basic to them all is the courage of businessmen to assume risks. Risk is inseparable from a profit system and the confidence to assume risks is in essence what makes such a system go. The observation that faint heart ne'er won fair lady can be applied with complete accuracy to the winning of profits and the meeting of payrolls.

All of this is preliminary to saying that we liked the courage of the quarterly General Motors report presented by Board Chairman Alfred P. Sloan. The report discussed the current general business recession but expressed the feeling that this represents only a temporary adjustment which will not affect the continued, long-run progress of recovery.

Courage is one quality that industry never has lacked, which is one reason why it has been throughout its history the nation's leader and mainstay in economic recovery movements.—Detroit News.

Health Advice

—By DR. ROYAL COPELAND—

Progress In Anesthesia Revealed.

PERSONS who contemplate major operations often confess that they fear the anesthetic more than the operation. They are indeed surprised when the awaken after the operation to find what little ill efect they suffer. Indeed, they may be remarkably comfortable.

How different this is from the common experience of only a quarter of a century ago. It was customary then to find a patient awakening from an operation violently sick at the stomach and perhaps delirous, unaware of his surroundings. It was customary to place a basin under the patient's face and encourage him to vomit. In most instances little encouragement was needed.

Today, nausea is rarely experienced after an operation. Many of my readers will recall that in former years all hospitals reeked with the smell of ether and other volatile drugs. Such odors can rarely be detected in a hospital today.

Anesthesia is given in at scientific manner. The patient is wheeled into a special room outside of the operating room. He receives the anesthetic here and is never taken into the operating room until he is sound asleep.

Various Drugs Used.

Various drugs are used today. They may be given in combination with gases, such as nitrous oxide, oxygen and ethylene. The anesthetic is administered by the socalled inhalation method. The amount given is scientifically estimated and varies with each individual, depending upon age, weight and other factors.

At times a local anesthetic may be used in preference to anesthesia by inhalation. Then there is injected into the tissues to be cut a drug such as novocaine. Cocaine was formerly used for this purpose, but novocaine is regarded as safer.

Injection of an anesthetic into the spinal canal is another form of anesthesia frequently used nowadays. This is recommended in certain cases. Although the patient is awake and conscious of movements during the operation, he experiences no pain.

Within recent years rectal anesthesia has been used extensively. In this form of anesthesia certan drugs are injected into the rectum. Peaceful and quiet sleep results, and this may last from 45 minutes to one hour and a half.

The Path to Home.

The path that stretches from my door
To all the world outside
Seems ever such a friendly one.
To kindly words allied.
To smiles and welcoming. This path
With gray field stones is set,
Grass grows between, low tended grass
Where stone and green are met.

There bounty dreams; such peace is in
This little path, my feet
To forth from it at dawn assured,
Returning, find it sweet
With peace. It is the dearest one
Of all earth's paths to me—
This path to my own door. It holds
Love, hope, serenity.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS

The average man's politics was an inheritance from his father.

It isn't what your grandfather was but what you are that really counts.

McIntyre's New York Day by Day

THE metropolis has a small army of men and women rarely seen until after midnight. And in the manner of night birds they vanish with dawn. While generally harmless, they are as mysterious as the blackness that envelopes them. They seem to know no one.

Mostly they wander about residential streets, always alone. A large number have been involved in head-line escapades, long since forgotten. Some are ex-prisoners hugging a martyrdom and shunning a society they feel might stare at them in the clarity of daylight.

Too, there is a sprinkling of the abjectly pathetic, wraith-like figures who shrink with a mild neurosis from every human contact. The world calls them "touched." Every large hotel and apartment house has a quota of such moon-gazers.

There are records showing that some of them have not been out in daytime for almost a lifetime. The women among the nocturnal nomads are mostly past middle age. Two of them once occupied one of the finest old mansions on the avenue. Only police and night-watchmen see them.

They are called "flits." A rather triumphant phrasing for that increasing swarm of lavender boys who caught the idea from the London stage that it's smart to be effeminate. The appellative is said to have stemmed from the proclivity of the genus to swish about with arms upraised and wrists dangling or arms akimbo. There are several at every tea among the theater folk and their cavorting is featured at every first night. London reports a distinct reaction against the flits in the theater and other arty circles but, sad to say, the casts of imported English plays show no thinning of the usual quotas.

The passing of Osgood Perkins, expiring suddenly after the first performance of a new play being tried out at Washington, deprives the theater of a vivid personality. He typified the new type of actor who helped lift the stage from vagabondage. Well born, a Harvard graduate, he played the piano and violin, and painted an acceptable landscape. He was one who made his art a business and never trifled with it. He gave his all to a part and demanded as much of associates. The adlibber who shortweighed his audience never repeated when the Perkins tongue had lashed out at him. Only once, at a Brock Pemberton tea, did I ever see him out of his stage role. He was one who refused to be typed. After setting a new high as a portrayer of hard-boiled comedy parts, he held out for months until he was cast differently. One of the most sought-after actors, he thought each part would be his last. And the only feature of his dramatic death he would have felt badly about was inconveniencing the management. To him the business of dying would have meant just another exit!

Still another sudden passing that seemed to stun New York was that of Ogden L. Mills. He represented the highest type of citizenship, an "economic royalist" who gave freely of his time and huge fortune for human betterment. The metropolis, more than any city I know, reacts to such losses. The morning the news of Will Rogers's tragic ending was received was a striking illustration. It is a matter of record that business all over town came to a sudden standstill. The theaters and movies that night were deserted. There was a big banquet that had 1,100 paid acceptances. Only a few more than 300 came. Will was articled to the same outfit that syndicates my wares and which, if I may say, is efficiently geared. But there was scarcely a wheel turning that day. From Toots, the office boy, to Driscoll, chief editor, they just sat and stared. And in my memory the passing of no public figure has created a greater void.

Thingumbobs: Gen. Hugh Johnson's radio and column income is now more than the president's salary . . . Sam Goldwyn bought 5,000 copies of the magazine that recently ran his biography . . . The newest Broadway columnist, Dan Walker, was once a secretary to Alexander Woollcott . . . Rex Cole takes 50 friends to every championship fight, following a grand beefsteak dinner.

I saw one of Webster's "Timid Souls" in real life at the Marguery the other evening. He came in hatless but as he went out gave the hat check girl a nickel.

LIBYA BECOMES ITALIAN EMPIRE BREAD BASKET

Balbo Slowly Reclaiming Area Which Was Once Noted For Fertile Fields.

TRIPOLI—(U.P.)—Guided by the iron hand of Marshal Italo Balbo, quadrumvir of the Fascist march on Rome, the colony of Libya is slowly but steadily reconquering its ancient place as the "granary of the empire."

Cyrenaica, with an area of 73,000 square miles long neglected by the plow, has won a 25-year battle against the invading desert sands. Cyrenaica was named by the ancient Romans after Cereris, goddess of wheat, because of its fertility.

After the Romans left Cyrenaica became a desert waste as the sands invaded the once fertile fields.

During July alone the African colony furnished Italy with 21,000 quintals of hard wheat, freeing the nation from costly importation as well as placing a new milestone on the road toward national independence. (A quintal is slightly more than 3½ bushels.)

Provisional Estimates.

Although official statistics for this year's crop are not yet available, agricultural experts estimate that the province of Tripoli alone has yielded approximately 150,000 quintals of barley and 36,000 quintals of wheat. Cereal production in the Misurata province, according to provisional reports, stands at 120,000 quintals of barley and 3,500 quintals of wheat while in the Benghazi district, the most fertile of the whole colony, production is placed at 120,000 quintals of wheat.

The agricultural colonization of Libya, going on with increasing intensity, also is having its beneficial repercussions on the unemployment problem, though, so far, in a limited way. On the Barce plain, once almost completely uninhabitable, more than 1,500 new colonists are engaged in agricultural works.

Steadily Pushed.

All the potential resources of the colony are being gradually exploited to make the production sufficient for its expanding population and to emancipate the fatherland from the importation of certain products. This ambitious goal already has been attained for cellulose by the intensive cultivation of alpha, a crop that is particularly abundant this year.

The total grain and barley acreage has been further increased this year. Italian colonists hope that, weather conditions remaining favorable, the production will reach its peak next year. It is also hoped that the present maximum yield of 16 quintals per hectar will be improved through greater use of choice seeds and chemical fertilizers.

Freddie Loves His Aunt, So Parents Lose Him

—Central Press Photo.

Freddie Bartholomew, child screen actor, loves his aunt and "hardly knows his parents," so Freddie stays with Aunt Myllicent and his parents, Cecil and Mrs. Lillian May Bartholomew, lose his custody. That's the latest decision in the legal entanglements of the boy screen actor, made in Los Angeles court where the parents once more attempted to set aside custody rights of the aunt. The Bartholomews had placed Freddie with the aunt when the boy was three. Now Freddie is 13 and he earns nearly $100,000 a year in the movies. Freddie sends his parents 10 per cent of his earnings. They have no other access to him. They came all the way from London to appear in Los Angeles court, where this picture, showing Freddie, his parents and Aunt Myllicent, was taken.

Nebraska's General Fund Hits Record Low Figure.

LINCOLN—(AP)—Debtless Nebraska's general fund balance has dropped to a record low of $4.27, the most acute shortage since a 1921 constitutional provision prohibited bonded indebtedness.

The state has $21,000,000 tied up in trust funds but only the $4.27 on hand to meet several thousand dollars worth of warrants which banks will present for payment soon.

State Treasurer Walter H. Jensen said he would incur no more expenses until he could set up machinery to register warrants against trust funds held by the board of educational lands and funds.

State Tax Commissioner W. H. Smith said the financial crisis was caused by the "inability of people to pay taxes following four successive years of drought."

CITY BUILDING PERMITS PASS MILLION MARK

October Shows Slump, But Total For 10 Months Runs Ahead of 1936.

Investment in new building in Mansfield has sent the total value of new construction for the first ten months in 1937 soaring past the $1,000,000 mark, more than $100,000 above the valuation for the same period in 1936, a survey of the building permit records showed today.

The total of all building projects for the ten month period in 1936, including remodeling, alterations, additions, residential, business and industrial construction, was valued at $945,276 as compared to $1,049,043 for the same period this year.

October Valuations Down.

The seasonal slump in building construction was reflected in October valuations that totaled $97,515, a drop of nearly $10,000 from the September figures but topped October 1936 figures by $35,000.

While the number of new homes under construction this year was 18 less than that last year, valuations in new home construction eclipsed those of 1936 by approximately $58,000.

A total of 134 new residences have been built this year at the estimated cost of $790,050, as compared with the 152 residences constructed in 1936 at the cost of $731,530.

Only 15 residential permits were issued during October as compared with 17 for the month previous, but new homes for which permits were issued last month have an average value of $5,600 as compared with a September average of $5,400 and the August average of $4,700.

WIN 27, LOSE 5

Drys 'Satisfied' With Result of Elections Over State.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Incomplete returns compiled by the Anti-Saloon League of Ohio showed today that dry forces won 27 contests and wets five in Tuesday's option elections on the sale of liquor and beer. Eighty-nine elections were held.

S. P. McNaught, Anti-Saloon League superintendent, who had predicted that dry gains would be fewer than a year ago, described the returns thus far as "very satisfactory."

Since repeal and before Tuesday's elections, McNaught reported, the drys had won 241 elections against the sale of whiskey and the wets 66, and the drys voted out beer in 217 elections and in 120 elections approved the sale of beer.

TAKE WEIGHT OFF TIRED FEET

Lose Fat The Easy Way — Without Starvation Diets, or Back-Breaking, Bending and Rolling Exercises.

If your feet and ankles feel tired and ache all over — because you are carrying too much fat — do something about it. Try the treatment that has helped millions to reduce excess weight.

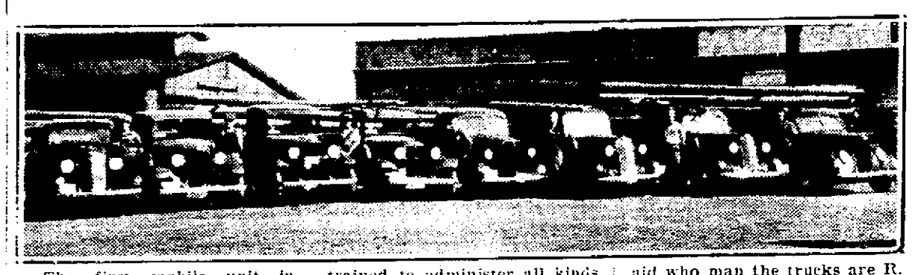
There's a reason why so many people find dieting slow and often [illegible] in reducing. The reason, doctors say, is often because a little gland is not working right.

All the blood in your body goes through this tiny gland sixteen times every day. If it doesn't send into the blood stream about one and one-half drops of vital fluid every 24 hours, many people take on ugly fat. This fluid helps Nature to "burn up" excess food and fatty tissue in much the same way as a good "draft" acts in a furnace.

Now, physicians combat this condition by feeding this gland the substance it lacks — and millions of pounds of excess fat has been wiped out in this way.

Marmola Prescription Tablets are based on the same method used by doctors. So don't waste your time or money striving to reduce with starvation diets or back-breaking exercises. Start the Marmola treatment today that millions have used successfully to get rid of excess fat. The formula is in every box so you know just what you are taking. Don't wait — get a box of Marmola today from your druggist.

New Mobile First Aid Unit of Red Cross



The first mobile unit in Richland county, equipped with first aid kits and manned by drivers who are trained in Red Cross first aid, has just been organized by the Ohio Public Service company. It is one of the important links in the first aid chain with which the Richland County Chapter of the Cross is attempting to cover the county.

The unit is made up of eight company trucks shown, above, all equipped with first aid kits and manned by drivers who are trained to administer all kinds of first aid until a physician can be summoned.

Gertrude B. English, executive secretary of the Richland County chapter of the Red Cross, said today that plans are being made for other companies to co-operate in a similar manner by having their truck drivers trained and first aid kits on all of their commercial cars.

Harold Diehl, division safety supervisor of the Ohio Public Service company, is in charge of the first mobile unit in the county. Drivers trained in first aid who man the trucks are R. F. Steinebrey, Charles Shutt, E. S. Beekman, William Reinphl, J. E. Augustine, Floyd Gable, Ben Stavenik, Don Myers, Don Leonard, Roy Blizzard and Harry Snider. Each car carries a Red Cross first aid marker to distinguish it.

Augustine is the first driver of the group to be called upon to render first aid in an accident.

He was near by when a young woman working on Vennum avenue caught her arm in an electric wringer.

CHINA SENDS FRESH TROOPS TO WAR FRONT

Thousands Pour Into Position Along Shanghai Battle Line to Halt Jap Push.

By JAMES A. MILLS

SHANGHAI —(AP)— Thousands of fresh Chinese troops, well-equipped and thoroughly disciplined, poured into Chinese positions today on the Shanghai front.

During a personal inspection, I witnessed the arrival of the new troops from the west, smart-looking and apparently utterly unafaid of Japanese bombing planes overhead.

Aided by these reinforcements, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's youthful legions fought furiously against the Japanese veterans.

Ignoring the circling bombing planes and the Japanese heavy artillery, the Chinese time and again lashed out at the Japanese troops.

The result was that Japanese positions along the south bank of Soochow Creek became almost untenable.

I found the Japanese had landed at only one place along Soochow Creek, where they drove a narrow wedge into the Chinese position south of the creek.

Counter Act Due.

But the Japanese foothold here was so precarious it was doubtful if it could survive a Chinese counter attack which was due shortly.

The Chinese positions in the rear areas were so formidable it was considered likely the Chinese could succeed in holding up the Japanese for some time. It also was apparent the Chinese intended to hold their right flank on the international settlement boundary. There they were completing powerful barbed wire entanglements and sandbag barriers contiguous to positions of the British and French guard outposts near Hungjao road.

The Chinese morale was exceedingly high despite severe casualties.

After viewing the Chinese in combat, an American military observer remarked: "It is inspiring to see there untutored and half-tained Chinese boys with their inferior equipment and lack of experience standing four square against seasoned Japanese warriors.

"The world can no longer belittle the fighting ability and bravery of the Chinese soldier, but must applaud him for in sheer heroism he is a match against any soldier in the world."

CLUBS HEAR OF DISASTER RELIEF

National Director Points to Preventative Measures Taken by Red Cross.

Preventative measures now being employed by the American Red Cross to eliminate future flood disaster were outlined by Robert E. Bondy, national director relief, in an address at a joint meeting of the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs at the Mansfield-Leland hotel this noon.

Bondy, who headed rehabilitation work in the Ohio and Mississippi valley following the flood last spring, told his audience "it was the greatest national disaster that this nation has ever known."

He explained that the work of the Red Cross did not stop at the rescue and care of refugees when the flood waters had subsided, but pointed to the rehabilitation work that was carried on by the organization after the disaster.

Homes are built and furnished in many cases, he said, and pointed to the relocating of an entire town on the Mississippi river. The community of 420 families will be moved to a higher location through the efforts of the Red Cross with WPA assistance, Bondy said.

"The work of the Red Cross is made possible through the voluntary response of the nation to the annual roll call," he added.

Bondy said that in 1937 the organization had played a major roll in 90 different national disasters that had resulted from the ravages of the elements.

W. J. Locke was chairman of the joint meeting of the two clubs.

FINISH CHURCH

Perrysville Structure to Be Dedicated Nov. 14.

PERRYSVILLE—The new St. John's Lutheran church, now nearing completion, will be formally dedicated on Sunday, Nov. 14 according to Rev G. M. Schrack, pastor.

Dr Joseph Sittler, president of the Synod of Ohio, will be the dedication speaker at the morning service.

Dr Arthur Smith, of Ashland, is scheduled to deliver the principal address at the afternoon service.

The new church, which was begun in October 1936, has been erected at a cost of about $16,000. It is a brick veneer structure.

Erection of the new church was made necessary by the merging of St John's and Grace Lutheran churches of this community several months ago.

The old St. John's church, located south of Perrysville, had to be abandoned because of its location in the Pleasant Hill dam basin.

THE STATE vs. ELNA JEPSON

By NANCY BARR MAVITY

(Copyright 1937)

CHAPTER VI

"Yes," she said, "I'll handle my own dynamite; I'm an independent personality."

"That's the girl!" Oscar Jepson's enthusiastic pounding of his fist on the table coincided with a ring of the doorbell.

Elna dropped her napkin and rushed to answer. On the doorstep stood a uniformed policeman. Elna's knees felt curiously wobbly.

* * *

The policeman turned out to be quite nice. The hysterical mother of the scratched child had reported that the dog might be mad. He—her Rippy—would have to go to the pound for ten days of observation.

"Rippy isn't mad," Elna found herself announcing definitely.

"It was that child who struck him first. It wasn't his fault. I said it was, but it wasn't. He was startled. Why, he barely scratched the child. It didn't even draw blood."

The policeman gravely consulted his note book. "All the same," he said, "the mother insists that we make a report and take your dog away tomorrow morning. What kind of a dog is it?"

"It—it's just a mutt," Elna answered feebly.

"That won't do. We have to put something down on the report."

Then Elna had an inspiration born of her despair. Up went the Jepson chin.

"Look at him and see," she said. (Back to the wall—the last chance—)

"Rippy!"

The dog bounded in at her call. Elna pointed a shaking forefinger.

"Say how-do-you-do to the man," she ordered.

Tail wagging, face grinning, Rippy galloped to the policeman's chair, placed forepaws on his shoulders, and proceeded to lick with a moist tongue the round red face.

The policeman ripped a page from his note book.

"I guess that dog's all right. We'll forget it."

Elna wanted to say "Thank you." She couldn't, or she would cry, and her father had taught her never to cry. She stumbled to her feet. A big, bluecoated arm was around her shoulders.

"Never mind, little girl, you're all right," the policeman said, and vanished through the front door before she could escort him.

"You handled that excellently, chit."

* * *

The words rang with pride in Elna's ears as she lay wide-eyed and sleepless through the night. Yes, she had handled her own dynamite. She had saved Rippy. But oh, how she wanted to fling her arms around her father's neck and sob out all her terror and ignorance and bewilderment! She had won—at a cost. Exhausted, she turned her head on the pillow, turned it over, hoping for the coolness that eluded her.

She had handled her own dynamite. She could never ask help from any human creature again. That was what he meant by respecting personality. That was what he meant by freedom. She would have to live up to it always. At last she found sleep.

Oscar Jepson was an architect looked upon with a blend of admiration and antagonism by his fellows. His reputation was national—and mixed. Colleagues and even laymen had been known to travel a hundred miles out of their way to look at a "Jepson house" — somehow it was always a Jepson house, the owners being completely forgotten. The owners might have had something to say about the penalties of fame, for a Jepson house made no concession to the ordinary conveniences. But at least they had the satisfaction of seeing their dwellings photographed and reproduced in rotogravure.

That was when Jepson had a free hand. Nevertheless, he was also capable of plotting out a new division, with houses "open to inspection in the most jerry-built fashion."

"Every person has a right to what he wants," Jepson said when accused by indignant young disciples of "prostituting his art."

"If he wants stucco, who am I to deny it to him? Why make him take something he wouldn't understand or like, just for the sake of you and me?" he argued.

Yes, Elna thought, remembering those heated fireside conversations, her father had been true to his principles of freedom for himself and equal respect for others. But somehow, intangibly, he had imposed his will to freedom, even then. All her life, Elna mused, she had followed that will to freedom, adoringly trotting in her father's footsteps. Without him, she was utterly at a loss, except to do as he would have her do. He would not want her to cry. The welling tears dried beneath her closed eyelids.

College — she was free then, surely. With a natural gift for languages, she longed to major in philology. He had not stopped her. He had only in a casual conversation pointed out that you could do nothing with philology but teach it. He had talked economics—brilliantly, detachedly. Elna was taking a course in economics, too, and a course in science.

"Follow your own bent," he said. "There may be a revolution in your time—not, I think, in mine. Perhaps never. All the same, revolution or no revolution, there is always room for trained scientists. You will have to make your own way, you know."

And so Elna had majored in science. It was her own decision, dictated by common sense. A faint suspicion crossed her that her immediate appointment as laboratory technician had some connection with her father's close friendship with the head of the department. Jepson would never have condescended to use pull. But Elna Jepson was Elna Jepson, and the name carried weight. As it turned out, she liked her work, was enthusiastic and ambitious even though, at present, it was mere routine.

Then, only a week ago, she and her father had gone to a party. When they returned, he remarked he felt "low." She begged to call the doctor.

"If you do," he said, "I shall go to a hotel. Remember, chit, I am my own master — a free agent."

Elna subsided. But the next morning, her heart beating furiously, she did call the doctor from the corner drugstore.

"A ruptured appendix," the doctor said. "Call the hospital in my name. Call an ambulance."

Somehow, despite regulations, she fought her way up to the operating floor. It was part of her father's teaching — to do. Suddenly an arm gripped her elbow.

"Hello, kid!" said a familiar voice.

"Curtis! How did you get here?"

"Just came," said the young man laconically. He had a round face, freckled nose, and close crop of red hair. "Mind if I stay? You'd do the same for me," he said with forced lightness. "After all, we played tiddly-winks and hide-and-go-seek together, not to mention high school."

* * *

The intervening week was a nightmare of clarity. Flowers came by the basketful.

"I don't like flowers. Send them to someone who does," her father said. Elna sent them to other patients in the hospital. Curtis Graham waited outside, walked her rapidly for miles. She hardly recognized his presence.

"Don't talk, if you don't mind," she said.

"I don't mind a bit," he answered.

She returned to the hospital room. "Be free — be free always," her father said. "Never do what you don't want to do. Don't even stay here unless you want to. I have no claim on you. Be true to your own will."

"I am." That was all that Elna could manage at the moment.

That came the day when she heard over and over the spaced, recorded words "I-want-exit. I-want-exit."

No more parades.

They had talked it over so often that she knew exactly what he meant. But she did not know how hard it would be—hard to hurt others—all the more hard because she agreed with him deeply, yet with this inner core of sympathy which was foreign to his nature. There was a "No Trespassing" sign on his soul, she thought with a faint smile. He was willing for others to have what they wanted, but there must be no invasion of his own freedom.

"Weddings are a relic of barbarism, but funerals are worse," he had said once, smiling at her through the red-brown light of an uplifted glass of sherry.

He had pulled his brother out of bankruptcy, but refused to attend his funeral for which the widow borrowed money far beyond her modest means. Neither would he listen to her reminiscences. Elna was sixteen years old then. She remembered the scene vividly.

"I don't care for parades," he told his sister-in-law, Georgiana, not scornfully but almost casually. "You're having a swell time right now, even though you can't afford it. But it happens not to be my idea of a swell time. It's none of my business, but really it would be grand for you to get rip-roaring drunk-and cheaper. May I start you on the upward path?"

To Elna's surprise he opened the cellarette and brought forth two large glasses of whisky. Oscar Jepson kept whisky for his friends but almost never drank hard liquor himself. There was no disguising the laughter in his eyes as he offered her one glass, drained the other.

Georgiana had never forgiven him.

Even at sixteen, Elna had wondered whether one mightn't sometimes set aside one's own principles, give silly Georgiana her day of importance. She had stumbled over the suggestion, but Oscar Jepson did not talk down to his sixteen-year-old daughter.

"You must save your own soul at all cost," he said, his dark eyes gleaming. "Georgiana has a perfect right to be a fool. She merely hasn't the right to make other people fools with her. Do you know what I'd like, chit?"

Oscar calle dher "chit" only when he was speaking seriously. The unaccustomed whisky had gone slightly to his head. He was revealing more of his inner self, so closely entrenched, than she had even seen before.

"I like houses, but I dislike flowers. When I die, no flowers. No more parades. If you have to make a gesture, get out this good sherry and drink to a good architect. But whatever you do, don't slobber."

No, she hadn't slobbered. But she hadn't quite known. She wanted desperately the anodyne of work in the laboratory, but there were too many things to do. She came to dread the ring of the doorbell—special delivery letters, telegrams, florist boxes. Oscar Jepson's relatives were scattered all over the country. It had seemed only courteous to inform them, briefly, impersonally, of his death.

Curtis Graham was constantly in and out of the house, begging to be of service.

* * *

The doorbell again. A young man was on the doorstep. Her father had been dead twelve hours.

"I'm James, of the Evening Express," he said. "I hate this as much as you do, your father's death is news. He was the greatest domestic architect in the United States. Everybody knows that. I want a human interest story about him—something more than is in the library and 'Who's Who'."

Curtis Graham leaned over her shoulder. She had thought him safely parked in the living room.

"I'll bash his nose in!"

Glancing back, Elna saw that he meant it. "No, thanks," she said. "I'll do my own bashing if necessary."

Curtis, chivalry aflame, retired before the coolness of her tone.

"Perhaps you do not realize that your father's passing is of national importance," James began hopefully.

"My father's death," Elna corrected. "I know it's your job. What do you want, exactly?"

"I want a human interest story—hobbies, all that —" His foot was in the crack of the door.

"You may take your foot out," said Elna. "I don't slam doors." James had been warned of a tough assignment. He thought himself incapable of blushing, but the blood rushed to his ears. He removed his foot.

"I'm sorry," said Elna. "That's not just a mode of speaking. I'm honestly sorry. Maybe you'll be scolded for not getting what you were sent for. If you could tell your editor that my father wanted—no more parades—no obituary notices—that was what he wanted—can't you let him be free in death?" She found herself leaning against the doorjamb, white and spent.

"That can't happen," James said. "He's a national figure. You could help me if you would. The other papers—"

"There will be no funeral services, by my father's wish," Elna said. "He prefers to be remembered solely as an architect. By his expressed desire, nothing beyond accessible published accounts will be printed about him. There will be for him-no-parades."

James shook himself. He said, "I'll tell him you weren't home. I'll tell him I couldn't get in. I'll tell him I got thrown down the stairs. I'll tell him anything—and maybe get fired for it. But if you give anything more to the other papers, I'll go jump in the bay."

"Oh, no, you won't," the calm still voice answered him. "Do your best if you can. Tell your editor that no other reporter will speak to me. Maybe that will pacify him." It was hard to smile, but she managed it.

"Damn me for a softy," the reporter muttered as he turned away. Then he swung back and seized Elna's hand in a wringing clasp.

"You're a swell kid!" It sounded silly, but it was the only thing he could think to say.

"Thank you," said Elna gravely as he galloped down the stairs.

RESUMES DRIVE

Farm Bureau Continues Work For Power Projects.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— The Ohio farm bureau will continue its activities in promoting rural electrification work in Ohio's counties despite its "mutual" partial severance of relations with the federal rural electrification administration, Murray D. Lincoln, executive secretary of the Ohio bureau, has announced.

"It is true that we have decided not to accept responsibility for engineering activities on new projects, which work we accepted in the beginning of REA projects in this state about two years ago. We have completed such work in eight counties and are now working in 20 other counties, which work we expect to continue and complete within four to six months," Lincoln said.

"Any new co-operative electrical projects will make other arrangements for their engineering contracts."

OHIO FINISHING 15 LIQUIDATIONS

Final Dividends to Be Paid By 11 Small Banks Within Next Two Months.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— The state banking department has announced it would complete liquidation of at least 15 closed banks before Jan. 1.

The liquidation division made public the names of 11 small banks in which final dividends would be paid within the next two months. At least five more will be added to the list, it was said.

All the banks will be those which failed to re-open after the banking holiday.

The Tontogany Banking company will pay a final dividend of 28 per cent, or a total of 68 per cent, to complete its liquidation. The proposed dividend will approximate $30,000, liquidation department officials said.

A final 17 per cent dividend of approximately $40,000 will be paid by the Hartville Banking company. This would permit a total payoff of 87 per cent in this closed institution.

Other banks in which final dividends will be paid and the percentages include:

The Marion Savings bank, 10 per cent with 43 per cent already paid out; the Glouster State bank, dividend not yet determined; Citizens Bank of Jackson, dividend not yet determined; Farmers Savings Bank, Haskins, final payment to permit 100 per cent payout; Farmers' and Merchants' bank, Millersburg, dividend not yet determined.

SIDEWALK ON FIRE

AUBURN, N. Y.—(U.P.)—A burning sidewalk called Auburn firemen out on one of the oddest alarms they have answered in years. Gasoline from a leaky gasoline tank became ignited when a passer-by tossed a lighted cigaret into the gutter. The firemen were told "the sidewalk's on fire."

Black Faces 3rd Challenge as Supreme Court Justice

SUIT ATTACKS LEGALITY OF APPOINTMENT

Florida Group Asks Rehearing of Appeal on Grounds Black Aided In Decision.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—For the third time during his brief career as an associate justice of the supreme court, Hugo L. Black today faced a petition challenging his eligibility to the $20,000 a year life post.

The latest attack upon President Roosevelt's only supreme court nominee was contained in a petition filed by a group of Florida oil royalty certificate dealers who asked that the court reconsider its previous refusal to review the constitutionality of the Basic Securities act of 1933 and the Powers of the Securities and Exchange commission.

Attacks Decision.

The petition for a rehearing of their case contended that Justice Black is not legally a member of the supreme court bench and that because of his participation in the court's decision on the original request was, therefore, improperly reached.

Legal experts and students of court history pointed out that only in rare cases has the court granted a petition for a rehearing. Many believed that there was a strong possibility that the court would deny the present petition without a written opinion.

Others noted, however, that the petition apparently met the objection raised by Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes in his brief "per curiam" opinion which announced the court's rejection of the first attack upon Black's constitutional eligibility.

Ruling By Hughes.

"The motion papers disclose no interest upon the part of the petitioner other than that of a citizen and a member of the bar of this court," Hughes said then in denying a petition offered by former Assistant Attorney General Albert Levitt. "That is insufficient."

Hughes ruled the petitioner "must show that he has sustained or is immediately in danger of sustaining a direct injury" because of Black's presence on the bench.

Society Steps Out In Headdresses of Roses, Butterflies

NEW YORK — (AP) — Society women presented a gay picture of winter fashion at the 54th national horse show debut.

Not since the brave days when Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish was social queen have women displayed such variety in headdress as they did last night in Madison Square Garden.

Headdresses ranged from water lilies to large pink roses and green butterflies—and a jeweled ornament swung over Mrs. William Farnell's forehead. One young woman came with ten yellow flowers—real ones—on the top of her head. Nearly everyone wore a veil.

The men, of course, turned out in white ties and tall hats — the same old story.

Judy King of Atlanta and some of the other lady drivers in the fine harness classes wore little nose veils that stood out stiffly in the breeze as their horses pranced. Pretty Lucy Sanders of Newport, a spectator, wore a red veil thrown over her blond hair.

There should be a law against persons standing up at football games, Leonard H. (Lumbermens) Jones thinks. Jones was fortunate enough to obtain one of the best seats at the recent Navy-Harvard game, but contends he saw very little of the battle which ended in a scoreless tie. The crowd rose to its feet every couple of minutes, he said, and it was his misfortune to be seated behind a couple of burly six-footers. In view of the circumstances, he was unable to comment on the game with authority, but thought the bands were good. He could hear even if he couldn't see them.

Despite the fact that there's a war raging there, with all its inconveniences, there's one nice thing about Shanghai, says Thomas Brennan, of Manchester, England, who has been in Shanghai for the past 12 years, and is now in Mansfield where he visited the Westinghouse plant. Electricity's plentiful and cheap there, he says. In his apartment in the international settlement, he has an electric range, refrigerator, iron, radio, sweeper, and of course, lights. Yet the monthly bill for electricity is only about $3, he says.

NAMED BY C. OF C.

Crestline Man Given Post at State Convention.

J. L. Morrow, Crestline, was appointed a director of the Central District at the annual convention of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce in Dayton yesterday, dispatches from that city said today.

Paul W. Williams, secretary of the Mansfield C. of C. presided at a discussion of C. of C. attempts to bring industrial expansion to a city. Others attending the convention from Mansfield were C. H. Henkel, Mansfield president, and Henry F. Goemann, national counselor.

Gov. Martin L. Davey spoke at last night's session, and said he would insist on local communities matching state contributions of relief money. The board of the directors of the state chamber then voted to advocate reduction from 65 to 55 per cent in the majority needed for passage of relief bond issues by municipalities.

LABOR PEACE TALKS RESUME

Southern Senator Sends Note To Warring Factions In Reconciliation Move.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—AFL and CIO delegates went back to their deadlocked peace parley today after Senator Berry (D-Tenn), who stands in the good graces of both factions, made a new attempt at reconciliation.

Berry, leader of the Printing Pressmen's Union, sent letters to Chairman John L. Lewis of the Committee for Industrial Organization, and President William Green of the American Federation of Labor.

He asked them, informed persons said, to compose their differences for the common good of labor.

Speculation arose that the appeal might have administration backing, because Berry has served in NRA assignments and formerly was president of labor's Non-Partisan League. There was no official indication, however, that the administration would intervene.

Negotiations between AFL and CIO representatives recessed a week ago in a "no compromise" atmosphere.

CIO spokesmen had asked for exclusive jurisdiction over mass production industries and for creation of an autonomous industrial union department within the federation. The AFL called instead for complete dissolution of the CIO and reference of its individual requests to federation conventions.

Secrecy and formality surrounded resumption of the negotiations in a hotel suite, separated from the public by two doors.

RURAL VOTERS REJECT 2 SCHOOL BOND ISSUES BUT OKAY 2 LEVIES

Voters at Butler and Bellville turned down proposed $70,000 bond issues for school additions at Tuesday's election, but a three-mill school operating levy at Lexington was approved by a substantial majority and a village operating levy of two mills was passed at Butler by a four-to-one-vote.

Complete returns had not been received today by the board of elections in the Lexington levy vote, but indications were that the levy, now operative, would be continued. It provides more than $6,000 annually for current school expenses.

The returns which had not been reported were in a Morrow county district which is a part of the Lexington district and entitled to vote on the levy.

The Bellville bond issue, which would have supplied funds to build additional class rooms to the school, was defeated, 490 to 310. The Butler bond issue for the same amount had a majority of 57 votes but lacked the necessary 65 per cent to carry.

The two-mill levy for municipal expenses in Butler was passed by a vote of 232 to 55.

In Jackson township, which was annexed to the Shelby school district last spring, voters gave a majority of more than three to one for the $80,000 bond issue for a Shelby school addition. The vote was 163 for and 48 against the issue. Jackson township pupils atend school at Shelby. The bond issue was passed in the entire district by a sizable margin.

VOTES OUSTER

Detroit A. F. of L. Hits Members Who Backed CIO Entry.

DETROIT —(AP)—The Detroit and Wayne county Federation of Labor voted 68 to 31 last night to expel delegates who held a meeting last week and endorsed Patrick H. O'Brien for mayor after the federation had gone on record for Richard W. Reading, now mayor-elect.

O'Brien was put in the mayoralty race as the Committee for Industrial Organization candidate.

The federation's board of directors was instructed to determine which delegates participated in the session for O'Brien and to vacate their seats.

The CIO candidate for mayor ran nearly 107,000 votes behind the A. F. of L. choice in Tuesday's municipal election.

SPRING G. O. P. MEETING DRAWS MORE PROTESTS

Michigan Senator, Borah and Townsend Opposed to Plan To Revive Party.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Plans for a mid-term national convention to put new life into the Republican party were threatened today when Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, R., Mich., joined the fight against an immediate call for a spring meeting.

"I do not feel that the subject has yet been adequately explored," the Michigan senator asserted. "Without passing on the ultimate idea. I don't believe the national committee or anybody else is in a position at present to anticipate what the situation will be next spring or next fall."

Others Opposed.

Vandenberg's declaration followed statements by Sen. William E. Borah, R., Ida., and Sen. John G. Townsend, R., Del., chairman of the Republican senatorial campaign committee, in opposition to the convention plans supported by former President Herbert Hoover and National Chaiman John D. M. Hamilton.

Last night Rep. Joseph W. Martin, R., Mass., chairman of the Republican congressional campaign committee, opened a campaign to defeat the proposal.

"Such a meeting would be a major political blunder, and harmful to the welfare of the country," he said.

Opposition from the Republican congressmen came as a surprise. Heretofore a majority of the Republican national committee was believed to have been pledged to the plan.

The Republican national committee meets in Chicago Friday to decide whether to call a mid-term convention which 90 per cent of the party members in congress were said to oppose.

Borah, with characteristic irritation at the so-called Old Guard leadership, warned the party that the people want not "a voice from the tomb but a fresh voice from the voters."

The white-haired Townsend declared that a thorough check of national sentiment was an essential preliminary to a convention.

Their criticism, privately said to represent the attitude of most of the Republicans in congress, promised a hot conflict before the national committee votes on the proposal. In the view of many veterans, it greatly decreased the possibility that the committee would approve it.

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

A Significant Discovery.

THE ATTITUDE of congress in the coming session toward the president's proposals is one upon which the political prognosticators at Washington, usually able to tell all about everything, are practically united in refraining from dwelling. Only those whose utterances will not be remembered are indulging in the usual forecasts.

THE REASON is obvious. They were so uniformly wrong about the last session that few save those careless of their reputations want to risk a prediction about the next one. It cannot help but be recalled with what singular unanimity it was agreed last January that the president's power was irresistible; that he had only to announce what he wanted and congress would break its dumb, rubbery neck to give it to him; that his program, whatever it might be, would be adopted without any change not White House sanctioned.

EVEN WHEN, out of a clear sky, the president, gloating over the way he had kept his secret, launched his court-packing plan, the most eminent journalistic interpreters in their most authoritative way asserted that it would go through exactly as the president desired—asserted this not once, but, in the early days of the fight, half a dozen times. When they recall how far they got out on the limb in this court-packing matter, there is tendency among the more sensitive to blush, and even the less delicate are disposed to be restrained in writing of the action of the congres which convenes a week from Monday.

THE FACTS that in the last session, so far from being irresistible, the power of the president was completely futile to enforce his will; that his program was shot to pieces and he did not get through a single one of the major measures he demanded; that the Democratic senators who defied him, so far from committing political suicide, actually strengthened themselves in their respective states; that the twaddle about "driving them out of the party" is now recognized as absurd—these facts are generally conceded. In their face it is foolish for anyone to pretend to know what this congress will do with the president's program. It may pass it and it may not pass it. No one can really tell—and that is as true of Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Farley as it is of anyone else. It was the latter, coming out of the 1936 election with a fine reputation as a prophet, who lost a large part of it last session by his repeated assertions that the court bill was "in the bag."

IN THE COMING session the president has a five-point program. He wants first a crop-control bill; second, a wage-and-hour control bill; third, a departmental reorganization bill; fourth, futher anti-trust legislation and, fifth, legislation designed to establish a series of TVA's in different parts of the country. None of these is likely to arouse the sort of violent opposition that met the effort to pack the Supreme Court, but there is opposition to them all and there is no general public remand back of any. What sentiment there is for these measures is a class sentiment and not a general sentiment and it can hardly be said that the country would suffer if they all failed. The only claim of that sort is made in behalf of the new crop-control bill and there is a division of opinion about that.

PERHAPS Mr. Roosevelt is strong enough and skillful enough to put these bills, all of which failed last session, through at this one. His propagandists present two reasons for confidence—one, because, they say, it has been shown that the president is still nearly as popular as he ever was; the other because members of congress, this time meeting on the threshold of an off-year election, in which all the house and a third of the senate must run, will be more afraid of antagonizing the White House. It is a plausible argument, but not sound. For one thing, members of congress have been home since adjournment and have discovered that there are just about as many Democrats ready to vote against them for blindly supposting the Roosevelt proposals as there are New Dealers hostile because they don't give that kind of support. For another thing, the illuminating fact has sunk into the minds of many—and will to a good many more—that while Mr. Roosevelt still may be popular personally, his policies are not popular at all.

A DISTINCTION is being drawn between the president and his policies. Logically, of course, they should not be separated, but the voters are often illogical and emotional. There are a good many not very bright people who emain charmed by Mr. Roosevelt, though disliking the waste of the public money which has marked the New Deal and distrustful of the direction it has taken them. Their absurd disposition is to blame the things they don't like on someone other than the president—the new Brain Trust or the CIO, or Harry Hopkins or Dr. Frankfurter (recently recalled from the doghouse) or someone else. To a considerable extent this disposition explains why opposing the president's policies in congress does not weaken a member of congress at home. This is one of the things a lot of members have discovered since last August. It is likely to have a considerable effect not only on the next session but on the Democratic politics of 1940.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—One of the most carefully planned careers in the movies is that of 11-year-old Jane Withers, and the planner is a "movie mamma" who lacks the disagreeable characteristic usually associated with that term.

Out at the Pomona race track, where Jane is on location for a new version of the famous "Checkers" yarn, Mrs. Ruth Withers was sitting at her usual respectful distance behind the camera. The only time she took part in the movie proceedings was when Jane, during the scene, got something in her eye—and then Mrs. Withers removed it only when Jane was sent over to her.

Not having seen Jane in some time, I was rather surprised at the lack of change in her. She's only three inches taller than when she first cracked pictures in Shirley Temple's "Bright Eyes," but she's as brown as toast.

* * *

"She hasn't missed a day in pictures because of illness in these three years," Mrs. Withers remarked. "She's happiest when she's on a picture—hates to see one end, can't wait for another to begin.

"That's why I think she won't ever want to give up acting. Right now she thinks she would like a year or two at college, and of course she'll have it."

Jane's film career represents the fruition of her mother's own unrealized dream of theatrical success. When they came here from Atlanta, they had tough times breaking in, but Mrs. Withers refused to give up. She was right. Jane now, unaided by spectacular or expensive picture vehicles, has pulled herself up to the very edge of the charmed circle of box-office favorites. In the last poll she ranked eleventh—quite a feat when you consider she is on the same lot with Shirley Temple.

If her film career encounters an awkward age problem, the Withers plan to keep on in radio and personal appearance tours until college time. Jane's studying Spanish now to include South America in her itinerary.

* * *

Jane and her mother have never been apart for so much as a single night—and the fact brought up an interesting question. After devoting her whole life to Jane—back home she never accepted a bridge invitation unless she could bring the child along—what will the mother do when Jane grows up, and gets married as most girls do? Except for Jane, her home, and her husband (who's in business out here now), Mrs. Withers has refused to let other interests into her life.

"Jane's a sensible girl," her mother answered, "and I don't think she would marry foolishly. When she finds a nice boy, I'm not going to do a thing to break up her happiness.

Should He Marry His Old Girl?

By VIRGINIA LEE.

WHAT CHANCE of happiness has a man with a girl who has left him twice for another person?

That is the problem a young man puts up to me.

The young folk in question are now only 23 and 24 years old respectively. They began going together steadily seven years ago—or when she was 16 and he 17. Then she saw another boy she liked better and married him. The first boy left town and was away for six years, and when he came back he found the girl had left her husband and he and she began going together again.

Someone told the girl that the boy would be happier if she left him alone, so she went back to her husband, but couldn't stand him and again left.

The man—who is the one who asks for help to settle the problem—loves her very much, but is not sure he should marry her after she receives her divorce, although she says she can't go on without him. He doesn't know whether he will be happy with her after she left him twice for this other chap. It will hurt him very much, he says, to tell her they are through, as he loves her dearly.

Well, J. P.: It depends upon the type of girl she is, of course. If she is flighty and not to be depended upon, you wouldn't be happy with her. And the fact that her first marriage failed sets a precedent that may indicate that she is not easy to live with and would leave at the first disagreement, that her staying powers are poor. In either event you would do better to part with her now, even if it hurts, than to go on and marry her.

On the other hand, the fact that you went together when you were children and still care for each other, would indicate that you both are pretty faithful. She must have married the other fellow pretty young, and because she made one mistake is no reason to suppose she will make another. If she had given you up twice for two different men I would think she was not to be depended upon, but it was only the one, and that simply may mean that she was mistaken in thinking she loved him, and has grown older and wiser.

I'm afraid it is up to you, but if you really love each other truly, it would be worth the risk, wouldn't it?

My Neighbor Says:

To remove the odor of smoke, put a basin of water in the room, leave it overnight and keep a window slightly open. The air will be quite sweet by morning.

Wash silk underwear in lukewarm water but never in hot. Do not rub hard or twist fabric. Remove the water by patting the silk between towels.

Always dampen twine used in tying bundles. It will tie much tighter and will not slip when knots are made.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, November 5.

EXCEPT FOR employment, which is fairly well aspected, this may be a day of particularly irksome and routine affairs, judging by the lunar operations. In such circumstances it may be well to "hew to the line" and reap what enjoyment there may be in rather intriguing personal adventures. These have an element of subtlety or secrecy, which, while adding zest to a dull day, may have its perils. Be wise with funds and indulgences.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year of rather mediocre or routine affairs; however, business and employment should prove stable. Domestic, affectional and social lives may offer compensations, albeit of an intriguing, hazardous and tempting nature. Be wise with extravagances and indulgences.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

CUT THEM DOWN

Cutting down the number of tricks taken by the enemy is exactly the same thing as taking more tricks yourself. There will be thirteen in every deal. If your keeping the opponents from running a suit decreases their allotment, it automatically raises your side's total.

Against South's contrast of 3-No Trump, West led the spade 2, on which East played the A and returned the spade 3. Declarer won with the spade K and immediately forced out the club A, whereupon two more spade tricks were lost, but the declarer was then able to win any return and run the five clubs, two hearts and one diamond, which, in addition to the spade already won, gave him his game.

East was a little hasty in returning the spade lead. The lead of the spade 2 by his partner indicated that they held four each in that suit, so that three spade tricks and the club A would not set the contract.

Instead of returning the spade the important thing for East to have done was to have knocked the diamond A out of dummy. This should have been particularly clear to East, as he himself held the club A. With the diamond K led by him, South would have had to win with the A in dummy and he would then have been limited to two tricks in clubs, being set one trick.

How should South play to make his contract of 4-Hearts after the lead of the spade J?

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

At my mother-in-law's words of approval, I drew the first full free breath I had taken since I began my interview with her. Nobody knew better than I what difficulties she might have put in my way if she had chosen to disapprove of my invitation to Queen Olga and her daughter, Princess Olina. I had hoped for passive consent. Instead, I was getting enthusiastic approbation, and I was correspondingly elated.

"You do not know what a weight you have taken from my mind," I said. "I was so afraid you might feel annoyed at adding strangers to our home, but Mary—"

"I trust I shall always be ready to do my duty as I see it," she said loftily. "But, tell me, what does your father say to this scheme?"

Again the role of Sapphira was thrust upon me. It never, never would do for her to think that I had told my father of this projected visit before I had talked it over with her.

Evades Falsehood.

"Oh, I do hope he will be as kind about it as you are," I evaded. "But I don't see how it will effect him much. He has his own suite and can be so much of a hermit when he chooses, that I don't imagine he will make any strenuous objection. I don't know what I shall do if he does."

"I wouldn't put off telling him if I were you," she counselled sagely, and again I drew a swift breath of relief, this time at having avoided a direct falsehood to her. "If you are not too tired, why don't you talk to him after you leave me? He and Richard must have finished those awful cigars by this time."

"That's a good idea," I said; rising hastily, for fear she might think of some amendment to her proposal, which already fitted so neatly into my plan. "You're sure there is nothing I can do for you?" I added solicitously.

"Not a thing, thank you," she answered, smiling affectionately. "Good night, my dear Daughter. It's nice to have you home."

Takes Her Leave.

"It's nice to be home with you," I told her truthfully as I bent and kissed her. And then, "making haste slowly," I got myself out of the room and back to my own room, where I waited perhaps five minutes until the sound of "sawing wood," as Dicky phrases it, floating in from his mother's open window, told me that she was safely asleep.

Throwing a light wrap over my negligee I tiptoed out of my room, past hers, and down the stairs to the veranda, where my father and my husband were enjoying their after-dinner cigars — the second series, I guessed—with gusto.

"Safely asleep?" Dicky queried as both men rose when I came out on the veranda.

"She won't waken for hours," I said with assurance. "Have the Ticers gone home?"

"They all left just a minute ago, after assuring us that everything except this front door was all locked securely."

"Then you may be sure we're locked in tightly," I said, smiling. "Now, how about it, Father? Dicky and I have some things to tell you. Shall we talk down here?"

Won't Take Chance.

"I'd rather you wouldn't," my father said soberly, and I caught my breath at his manner.

"If the walls have ears," he smiled, "the bushes around a veranda might have super ones. There probably is one chance in a million of there being an eavesdropper around, but if I have any success in my work, I think it is mostly because I do not take even a millionth chance."

"I'll radio the universe you don't, Chief," Dicky said heartily, and then my father held out his hand to lift me from the couch-hammock upon which I had sunk when I came out on the veranda.

"Do you mind going up to my rooms?" he asked.

"Mind? I'd love it!" I told him and after Dicky had locked the front door, we three went up to father's suite, where he drew forward chairs for us, taking his favorite one opposite us.

"First," he said, "before we go on to anything else, how did Mother Graham take the news of the proposed visit of Queen Olga and her daughter?"

"Like a lamb," I told him, "and she counselled me not to wait, but to tell you about it before I slept tonight."

Say! That's really a slick way to fix up an old formal . . . no wonder the gals are so "tickled pink"! Sure, we'd all like to have a new gown for every party, but since we can't afford it, we'll have to get the old thinker working. I snooped a lot of helpers for you this afternoon — at REED'S. Let's begin at the bottom and work up. First . . . hose—how about irridescent mesh to give you that "different" feeling? They're $1.15 at REED'S hosiery counter, and well worth every cent of it! Then . . . how about a sparkling rhinestone belt? You'll find a nice variety of them priced from $2 to $6 . . . buckle and all. Next, how about new bracelet and clips, or necklace and earrings? I can't begin to describe the display they have at REED'S . . . pearls, rhinestones, heavy gold and silver priced from $1 to $3. Now a new bag. . . . They have some beautics in black and gold beads, also gold and pearl combinations . . . they're very new and ultra smart ($3). Now just a word on the sequin question. REA ABANDONS POLICY WITH FARM BUREAU

Agreement Reached to End Relationship; Reasons of Expense Pointed Out.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The Rural Electrification administration has announced abandonment of a policy which permitted the Ohio Farm Bureau to promote, engineer and supervise REA projects.

In a notice to the state's rural electrification co-operatives, REA said "reports and accountings must hereafter be rendered solely to the REA in accordance with instructions to be furnished by the administrator through its divisions of operations supervision, audit, utilization, legal and engineering. The farm bureau relation with these projects is limited to the completion of its remaining engineering contracts."

Reach Agreement.

John Carmody, REA administrator, said the notice was intended to "avoid misinterpretation" in connection with the new policy.

The bureau's withdrawal, he said in a statement, "is by mutual agreement, arrived at after months of friendly discussion" and "grows out of the fact that no way exists for the government, through an allowable engineering fee, to reimburse the farm bureau for its promotional expense. Much of the large sums which it has devoted to this work must be written off as a contribution by the farm bureau to the cause of electrification.

"The bureau can not go on thus, at a continual loss—especially in view of the fact that the movement is now self-expanding, on a pattern which is now familiar. The REA itself has staff assistance available for the work needed to guide new projects."

REA said government restrictions prevented methods of recouping the farm bureau's outlays.

Carmody praised the farm bureau for its "invaluable contribution in helping REA to accomplish its work in Ohio."

ARRASTRA FOUND

TONOPAH, Nev.—(U.P.)—An old arrastra, device used by early Mexican miners of the west to grind silver from rich Nevada ore, has been uncovered near here by two Tonopah residents. The arrastra stood near the crumbling remains of a small furnace in which the silver ore was treated before being put into the grinding unit.

STEUBENVILLE— (U.P.)—The Myers family has a village all of its own on the outskirts of Steubenville.

Founded 10 years ago by J. Ross Myers because he wanted his family to remain intact, the 10-acre colony now has a population of 17-all Myerses—and seven artistic buildings, constructed of stones collected by the "men folk" from the surrounding hills and fields.

The colony, called "Snug Harbor," is run on a co-operative basis, all purchases being made from a common fund to reduce costs. Power is supplied at a commercial rate by a Steubenville utility.

The Colony plans to build a reservoir and pumping station soon.

TALKING BOOKS OF MANY KINDS LENT TO BLIND

Federal Government Helps to Produce Machines and Disc Records.

SACRAMENTO, Cal. — (U.P.) — The California state library, furthering a WPA project, is enabling hundreds of blind persons to "read" with talking books.

From the library's department for the blind, considered one of the finest in the United States, are distributed to blind persons in the California-Nevada area the machines and records to those who cannot afford to purchase the equipment.

Called the greatest boon which modern science has brought to the sightless, the original books were designed and manufactured by the American Foundation for the Blind in New York. Since then the federal government also has undertaken production of the machines and records under the direction of the Library of Congress.

To date nearly 500 machines, which resemble a portable phonograph, have been distributed in this area.

Books Sold at Cost.

To those who cannot afford to buy them, the talking books are made available by the government free of charge. The Foundation sells the books at cost.

The talking books came into existence because of the fact that only 25 per cent of the 125,000 blind persons in the United States can master Braille or other embossed types with proficiency. The talking books thus come as an "open sesame" to adult blind whose fingers lack the requisite sensitiveness of touch.

Trained readers, the majority of them men, read the books into recording machines and the resulting discs are sent along with the machines for a two-week period.

The machine itself, however, may be kept by the applicant, after he has been properly registered with the federal government which retains ownership of the books.

Famous authors have recorded their works on the 12-inch discs, similar to phonograph records, for the pleasure of the sightless. By means of the reading machine which is equipped with a slowly revolving turntable, each book reads itself aloud to the listener, who can adjust the tone and volume as desired

The talking books—under an agreement with publishers, may not be used by seeing persons.

Choice Vastly Greater.

A wide range of literature, much more modern than the outmoded Braille texts in most instances, awaits the choice of blind persons.

Authors who have made recordings for the device include Alexander Woolcott, Dr. John H. Finley, Dr Raymond L. Ditmars, Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, Lyman Beecher Stowe and Rep. Kept E. Keller.

Detective stories, the Bible, Shakespeare, "Alice in Wonderland" and "The Christmas Carol" are included in the list of 100 titles which may be borrowed from the 27 distributing points throughout the country, of which the California library is one.

EVERY SHOT COUNTS

CODY, Wyo.—(U.P.)—Five years ago, Mrs. Wylie Sherwin of the North Fork country near here received a gift of a big game rifle and a box of 20 shells. Since that time she has killed four elk and a deer. She still has 12 of the 20 gift bullets unused.

Book of the Week

"THE CITADEL by A. J. Cronin, Little Brown & Co. 401 pages, $2.50.

* * *

These who have enjoyed the recent good books by and about doctors will have another to add to their list. "The Citadel" has been out just long enough to prove its worth; and it has been among the best sellers since its publication.

A doctor has written the book and it is a novel about a doctor. So the man knows whereof he speaks. It is not Dr. Cronin's first novel; two others before this one heralded his ability as a writer.

It is a story of a young physician. Andrew Mason, a hard-working, conscientious young man, begins his practice in a small town under a sickly doctor Through adventurous days, filled with success and failure, sorrow and joy, we follow his rise to a London practice, the realization of his ambitions. There he is almost broken and defeated because of the smugness and arrogance of his superiors.

Later, he craves material success, which he finds can be attained by compromising some of his high ideals and beliefs. Of course, there is a Christine, who understandingly stays at his side throughout it all

Dr. Cronin has written a novel which lends itself to the scathing indictment he wishes to place on certain aspects of the medical profession. In addition, he has filled his pages with a well written story about a man who tried to be a good doctor but thought it didn't pay.—E. S.

HEAR OUTLINE OF SOILS PLAN

Conservative Members Go to Norwalk; Present Program to Townships Tomorrow.

Members of the Richland county soils conservation committee and County Agent George B. Ganyard were in Norwalk today to hear the 1938 federal soils program outlined at a district farm meeting.

Representatives of the state soils conservation committee were to speak at the conference, giving details of changes in the new program under which participating farmers will receive payments for soil building practices.

Information obtained at the meeting today will be brought to the 18 township chairmen in Richland county at a meeting Firday night in the county agent's office at the courthouse, Ganyard said.

During the next three weeks township committees will be named at local meets and at the conclusion late this month a new county committee and chairman will be elected by the township groups.

Attending the Norwalk meeting today with Ganyard were G. L. Taylor, Madison township, chairman of the county committee; G. A. Mentzler, Troy township, and C. C. Till, Sharon township.

Ransom Note Map To Help G-Men In Ross Kidnap Hunt

WASHINGTON— (AP) —Federal agents pin their hopes of solving the Ross kidnap case upon two large maps of the mid-west.

The large-scale charts, one of which is kept in Chicago, will show with brightly colored pins where any $5, $10 or $20 bill turns up and is identified as part of $50,000 paid early this month to the alleged kidnapers of Charles S. Ross, retired Chicago manufacturer missing since September 25.

Director J. Edgar Hoover of the Federal Bureau of Investigation said today solution of the Ross case hinges on prompt identification of the ransom bills.

"Every ransom bill is a potential clew," he said. "And it is one of the best kind of clews we could have."

Only three Ross ransom bills have come to light, but already pins have been stuck in the maps to indicate where and when. All were in the Chicago metropolitan area.

The passenger pigeon, so numerous that its flocks once darkened American skies for hours at a time, became extinct within a few years when market hunters knocked down the adult birds systematically from their roosts at night.
